March of Events

Smallpox in China

TROTZKY, telling Mr. Ochs, at considerable length, just what happened to him, describes his downfall and exile as "La Marche des evenements." "The march of events."

He might better have described his troubles as due to "La faiblesse humaine"—"Human frailty."

Trotzky couldn't hold his place because he lacked strength to hold it. Had powerful Lenin lived, he would have held power, and Trotzky in Lenin's shadow would have continued to direct the Russian army, which he did admirably.

Trotzky's statement that Stalin and other Russian leaders that exiled him and his friends are leaning "to the right," that is, toward conservatism and capitalism, will interest America's conservative government.

Stalin, intelligent Russian, knows that power without money is a shadow, so he leans in the direction of money.

Revelation of a war agreement between France and Belgium disturbs the innocent British, but it doesn't disturb this country.

We are willing to put our fingers in the crack of any door, trusting to Providence to prevent the door closing.

The Germans are excited about the French-Belgian war pact, that, according to rumor, would compel either of the two nations to join the other in any fight against Germany.

This interesting revelation should convince our Government that George Washington knew what he was talking about when he advised the United States to keep out of Europe's affairs.

The French have discovered an oil trust, with Britain and the United States combining to control oil producing fields all over the world, to the detriment of France.

American oil stock and oil well owners would like to know who runs that trust, and why it doesn't do something to prevent the squandering of oil?

A widespread outbreak of smallpox adds to China's other troubles. The Chinese, more intelligent than some Americans, appreciate the importance of vaccination and have designated March 1, next, as "national vaccination day." Ignorance still opposes vaccination in spite of the fact that what was once the most dreaded of all disease has ceased to be important in civilized countries.

When Voltaire's friend, Catherine of Russia, was inoculated with vaccine from the arm of a little boy and created that boy "Duke of Smallpox," every other face was disfigured by smallpox marks. If smallpox deaths were now what they were then, a city like Chicago would be fortunate if it escaped with 50,000 deaths from smallpox a year.

Mr. Nichols, Kansas City real estate man, said he would be willing to buy a picture by Leonardo da Vinci, if certain of its genuineness, or do anything else in reason to help the city, of which he is so proud.

Kansas City is almost wild about a Leonardo Da Vinci, that, according to Sir Joseph Duveen, Leonardo himself never saw.

Fortunately, Kansas City can struggle along without the help of Leonardo as long as factories develop, real estate goes up in value and packing houses operate.

Old Colonel Coates, who built a first-class hotel in Kansas City more than half a century ago; the Dickey brothers, that drove their big bunches of steers to the Kansas City stockyards, and the boats that stopped at Kansas City's landing on the way to St. Louis and New Orleans, did more for Kansas City than could be done by all the painters that ever lived.

First wealth, then at your leisure, and no hurry about it, art.

Call money cost 9 per cent yesterday, but Wall Street persisted strongly in its cheerfulness, with stocks going up, steel strong, copper high, with the cost of copper metal rising in price. Even oil stocks went up.

It is hard to discourage those that believe in the future of American values.

The Tampa Daily Times, cheerful about big Florida State, announces already 38,000 solid carloads of fruits and vegetables have been shipped North, and that is less than half the season's crop.

The shipments include more than 31,000 carloads of citrus fruits.

Carl Fisher, who has done a great deal for Florida, writes from Miami that crowds there at hotels, in private houses and on houseboats have never been so great in Florida's history.

The stream of automobiles flowing South compares with the flocks of carrier pigeons that once darkened the sky.

CHAPLIN SUFFERS RELAPSE

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 27 (INS)—Suffering from the effects of ptomaine poisoning, Charles Chaplin experienced a relapse early today. Dr. Cecil Reynolds issued the following statement: "Mr. Chaplin's condition is uncomfortable. His temperature rose shortly before midnight."

The doctor's statement occasioned more anxiety over the comedian's condition than at any time since Chaplin was stricken, last Monday.

Indicating the existence of an emergency, all methods of communication between the Chaplin household and the outside world have been temporarily severed. Guards have been stationed around the big home. Telephones have been disconnected.

Rigid seclusion for the noted comic has been ordered by his physicians.

Chaplin's nurses, it was learned, hastily summoned Dr. Reynolds after the comedian's temperature had risen alarmingly and he had tossed about on his bed for hours, unable to sleep.

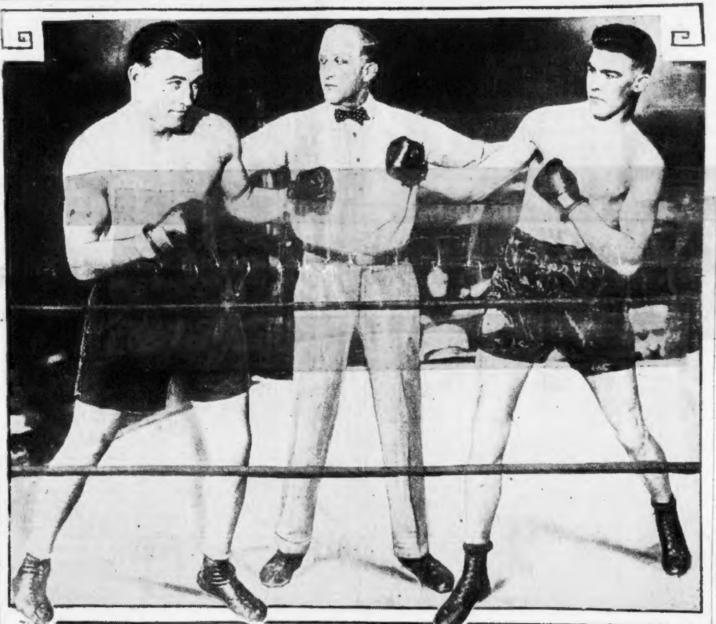
Meanwhile, an investigation was being conducted into the origins of the ptomaine poisoning which caused the actor to collapse while engaged in his picture work.

Mrs. Edwards Left $5000 to Her Maid

The will of Mrs. Jesse R. Edwards, wife of Gen. Clarence R. Edwards was filed in Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham today. To Miss Mary Coughlin, her personal maid for the past 25 years, Mrs. Edwards left $5000.

The residue of the estate goes to her husband. No estimate of the size of the estate is given.

Here They Are, Fighting As They'll Be Tonight



FIRST PHOTO OF SHARKEY, MAGNOLIA AND STRIBLING IN THE RING TONIGHT

MYSTERIOUS PROWLER SEEN NEAR HIS ROOM; ODDS MOUNT TO 8 TO 5

By JACK CONWAY

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 27—Jack Sharkey, who battles Young Stribling in a ten-round bout here tonight, was today guarded against possible injury from cranks by a special guard. Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, took this precaution when a mysterious person was detected prowling around Sharkey's room early this morning.

Ever since his arrival here, Sharkey has been receiving mysterious telegrams consisting merely of numerals. They usually have included three numerals and have been unsigned. It is believed they have been the work of some fanatic.

Following close upon the attempt to shoot Jack Dempsey, the prowler outside of Sharkey's door caused considerable alarm. Buckley felt he might be the same person who attempted to shoot Dempsey.

The weather today was ideal, while Sharkey and Stribling declared they were in perfect condition. Sharkey ruled an 8 to 5 favorite at noon, with the likelihood that he would enter the ring a 2 to 1 choice.

Sharkey Says He'll Win Battle in Six Rounds

By NICK FLATLEY

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 27—Although fight experts from all over the country were predicting that tonight's battle between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling will go ten rounds, Sharkey declared that the battle will not last longer than six rounds.

"I'll win this fight inside of six rounds," declared the confident sailor from Boston.

"Do you mean that you will win by a knockout?" he was asked.

"I'm simply saying that the bout will not last longer than six rounds. Wait and see what I mean," was his answer.

Sharkey should shellac Young Stribling.

Sharkey is in the best condition of his recent life, and is aching to fight. He has trained for this go as he never trained before except for his New York war with Jimmy Maloney.

He has kept himself down around 190 pounds, which is his best weight, and has not had to overwork to do it. He has been in condition ever since last December when he fought DeKuh in Boston.

That is the longest stretch the millionaire sailor has punished

RITZ OFFERED $10,000 BRIBE, SAYS COCKINOS

Nicholas Cockinos, Watch and Ward Society agent and one of the defendants in the Ritz conspiracy case, testifying in his own behalf today in Suffolk Superior Court, said that he was offered "from $2000 to $10,000" to save the hotel's license, following the liquor raid which he caused the police to make.

"A man named Charles Martin approached me and told me a Mr. Adams of the Ritz Hotel had requested him to see me and to see if I could quash and conceal evidence so that it wouldn't go before the licensing board, and that if I did I could get $2000 to $10,000," testified Cockinos.

Cockinos then testified that later a Ritz waiter named Peter Pappas, who had been arrested in the raid, came to him and said:

"Mr. Sullivan (proprietor of the hotel and a government witness) sent me. If you will save him from losing his license at the licensing board hearing, you can get $2500."

Cockinos said he told Pappas: "You tell Mr. Sullivan I am not for sale." Continuing his testimony, the defendant-witness said:

"Pappas later came and said: 'Don't be foolish. Everyone is making money at the Ritz. The old man will give you $2500 and so much a week.' Later on Pappas asked: 'Will you take any amount of money?'

"I laughed at him and told him not to bother me."

Cockinos denied all charges against him. He told of spying at

Mrs. Vanderbilt May Halt Wedding

New York, Feb. 27 (INS)—New York society was buzzing today over reports that Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr., dowager head of the Vanderbilt clan, is shortly to go to Europe in an effort to halt the marriage plans of her daughter, Lady Margaret Dukes, to Prince Charles Murat, head of the French Bonapartist party. The couple have been reported engaged for some time.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is reported to frown on the match because of her aversion to divorces in the Vanderbilt family. This will be Lady Duke's third marriage.

Gen. Foch Is Better

Paris, Feb. 27—Marshal Foch's condition was slightly improved today, according to a bulletin issued by his physicians. The bulletin read:

The marshal's temperature has been reduced to 99. His pulse is 86. There is slight improvement in the pulmonary congestion."

Dr. Heitz-Boyer, one of the physicians attending the 77-year-old veteran campaigner, was elated over the improvement in his condition. His other doctors, however, still regard his chance of recovery as hope-

GALLO TELLS HOW CERO STABBED HIM IN JAIL

The story of how he was stabbed by Gangi Cero while both were in the yard of Charles st. jail was told today by Samuel Gallo, on trial in Suffolk court for the murder of Joseph Fantasia, for which Cero has been condemned to death.

The witness said the attack occurred at a time when he believed he and Cero were the best of friends, the latter having made no accusations of any kind against him.

"When the bell rang I got in line," Gallo testified, after describing his conversation with Cero in the jail yard, after Gallo had been sentenced to two years for contempt of court.

"The only thing I remember was when an arm came around my neck from behind. Then I felt the stab

PEDLAR POSED AS ASTHMA SUFFERER TO GET DOPE

Frank Olea, a pedlar, confessed he had obtained prescriptions for morphine from Dr. Speicher by posing as an asthma sufferer.

How "Miss Lucille Bland," an Examiner operative, obtained another prescription under a similar ruse was related Monday in the Examiner's story which started the state's probe of Dr. Speicher's activities.

That "Miss Bland" does not have bronchial asthma or any other treatable chest disease was certified to by Dr. Harry Cohn, director of the division of tuberculosis of the city health department.

Equipped with voluminous records of prescriptions issued by Dr. Speicher, Inspectors William A. Byrne of the State board of medical examiners and William B. Luckenbach and R. H. Dundas of the State narcotic division were engaged in checking them.

Investigation of 11 prescriptions, issued by Dr Speicher to C. H. Mitchell, 859 West 61st st., from September 27, 1928, to November 17, disclosed that no such person resided at that address.

Three other prescriptions were issued to Mark Ruiz, 322 North Hope st., from January 11 to February 17 of this year.

Ruiz was arrested February 21 as Frank Olea and jailed as a narcotic pedlar.

Shown a photograph of Olea, Dr. Speicher said he believed it to be that of Mark Ruiz and that Ruiz was a sufferer from asthma.

Dr. Speicher never personally verified the addresses given him by alleged "asthma sufferers," he declared, and had no means of ascertaining whether they lied about their addresses.

He sold a morphine prescription to "Lucille Bland," he declared, because she said she had asthma and his examination disclosed a decided wheeze in one of her lungs.

Dr. Cohn, however, was unable to discover rales or adventitious sounds even on the inspiration following a cough when he examined "Miss Bland" at his office.

Defends Giving Girl Morphine Prescription

"This is to certify," Dr. Cohn's record of his findings read, "that I have this day examined Lucille Bland. The purpose of the examination was to determine the presence or absence of a chest disability, particularly bronchial asthma.

"There is no family history pointing to any over-sensitiveness. The patient's past history fails to reveal any evidence of chest infections or disease.

"A careful physical exploration of the chest does not disclose evidence of asthma or associated conditions. The percussion findings are within normal limit, no changes from the normal noted in voice conduction or breath sounds. No rales or adventitious sounds are noted even on the inspiration following a cough.

"This patient is not suffering from bronchial asthma or from any treatable chest disease.

(Signed) "Harry Cohn, M D.

"Director, division of tuberculosis."

Defending his action in issuing a prescription to "Miss Bland," while Dr. Cohn's examination showed her to be not suffering from asthma, Dr. Speicher declared it was not unusual for physicians to differ in their diagnoses.

Under the present laws, he said, it would be a simple matter for any one to obtain large quantities of narcotics by visiting various physicians and giving a different name in each case.

"I am tired of the whole business," he said, "and from now on I am going to put my foot down on it. No one will get any more narcotic prescriptions from me. They will have to get them somewhere else.

Narcotic Case Methods of Some Doctors Scored

"A lot of World War veterans with bad lungs come into my office.

"Morphine is prescribed for tuberculosis, mostly for the reason that it tends to make the patient breathe more easily. Most of my patients for whom I prescribe narcotics are suffering from either tuberculosis or asthma, but I am going to cease giving narcotic prescriptions, regardless of the circumstances."

Perfunctory methods of examination used by some physicians when patients apply for narcotics were denounced by Dr. E. L. Commons, chairman of the narcotic committee of the Los Angeles County Medical Association.

"There are a number of organizations, Federal, State and county, besides our medical societies and educational groups, vitally interested in suppression of narcotic addiction," Dr. Commons declared.

"Physicians are kept constantly advised of legal requirements, changes in rulings and suggested methods of handling narcotic cases.

"I cannot imagine any physician not being thoroughly familiar with the narcotic laws.

"I cannot conceive of any doctor who does not know that he should make a complete and thorough examination of a patient applying to him for narcotics.

"I cannot imagine a physician issuing a narcotic prescription without first assuring himself that there was sufficient pathology to warrant it.

"I am speaking in no official capacity. I am merely chairman of the narcotic committee of the Los Angeles County Medical Society. I am interested only in the protection of members of that society."

WOMAN IN 'GUN GIRL' TRIAL ADMITS LIE

Mrs. Bettina Massarelli, 20, of Dedham, first woman to go on trial in Middlesex County for armed robbery, admitted under cross-examination today that she was known on the stage as Betty Togo and drove an automobile presented to her by a Japanese actor.

She also admitted she was not telling the truth when she testified that the only name under which she had been known since living in Dedham was Bettina Massarelli.

She took the stand in her own defense and offered an alibi in connection with the charge that, with a male accomplice, she held up and robbed William E. O'Connell, manager of a chain store in Broadway, Everett, of $204.

Mrs. Massarelli testified that on the night of December 2 she went to Boston with her common law husband and attended a moving picture show, returning to Dedham about 10:30 or 11 o'clock.

The following morning, she said, she was awakened by her sister-in-law, who came to the house to borrow a sweater to wear to work. Mrs. Massarelli placed the hour she arose at 8:15. This was on December 3, the day of the robbery, which occurred at 7:30 a. m.

She denied she was in Everett the morning of December 3 and denied the robbery, ever having seen O'Connell until she was taken to the Everett police station, or that she ever had a gun.

Father Who Kicked Girl Can Keep His Pledge in Jail

"Let me off this once, Judge, and I'll never down a drink of liquor again. I'll take the pledge."

So pleaded Michael Gordon, 58, Eagle st., East Boston, father, who was in East Boston court today charged with kicking his daughter, Ellen, 11, by way of persuading her to go to bed at 5:30 p. m.

"How long have you been drinking, Mike?" inquired the judge.

"About 45 years," admitted Gordon.

"Well, you'd better take your first three months of abstinence in jail" ruled the court. "Keeping the pledge will come easier to you, there." Gordon went to Deer Island.

on by left breast, then to the right.

"I fought to clear the arm away from my throat and as I turned around I got another blow on the left arm. My eyes were blinded, but I remember walking about eight feet. Then I fell down. I didn't remember any more blows after the cut on the arm."

The crowd which has been rushing the courtroom each day was on hand at the opening of the session, but the corridor was roped off and officers kept the throng back.

Under a lengthy direct examination by Atty William H. McSweeney, the witness refuted testimony given by Gangi and Cosimo Cero and by Louis Smith. He denied saying he had offered Smith $2500 to make an affidavit changing his testimony given at Gangi Cero's trial, and declared he did not give Smith the money.

He told of going to an undertaker's office in Hanover st. with Smith and Cosimo Cero, where Smith did some writing. After the party left they were arrested, charged with being pickpockets.

Subsequently they were taken to Charles st. jail, where the witness saw Gangi Cero in a cell, he testified. He said Gangi shouted to his brother:

"Instead of helping me you ruined me."

The brother replied, according to Gallo:

"Well, I did my best. Anybody can be double-crossed."

"Did you say to Gangi at any time while you were in jail, referring to the day Fantasia was killed: 'Why did you go back to the automobile?'" "No."

"Did he say to you: 'Why did you bring me with you when you killed a man?'"

"Certainly not," Gallo answered.

RITZ BRIBE OFFER IS CHARGED

the hotel and seeing liquor served there.

He asserted that Raymond L. Perry, an investigator whom he had assigned to make observations at the Ritz Hotel, reported being offered $1000 to "lay off the case and go away."

As a result of his own investigation and that of Perry, Cockinos said he made a report to Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley and turned his evidence over to Lieut. Daniel J. Hines and Special Officer Oliver B. Garrett of the liquor squad.

Cockinos, together with Albert Sidlinger and Ralph Gross, is charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, the government seeking to prove that the hotel was raided on the initiative of the Watch and Ward agent and that thereafter the proprietor, John F. Sullivan, was offered protection for a monetary consideration.

The third defendant to testify, Cockinos told his story under questioning by his attorney, George A. Douglas.

SENT PERRY TO RITZ

Cockinos said he was 36 years old, a native of Greece and had worked for the Watch and Ward Society at three different times, being now chief investigator and taking instructions from the secretary, Mr. Bodwell.

He told of making observations at the Ritz Hotel in November, 1927, and as a result of what he observed he said he assigned an investigator to watch more closely. This man failed and then Cockinos assigned Raymond L. Perry, he said.

"On March 1 or 2, 1928, I went to the Ritz accompanied by a social worker," he testified. "I was placed at a table and when we were there about a minute, the headwaiter came to the table and said, 'I will have to place you in a booth.'

"Did you see Mr. Sullivan (proprietor of the hotel)?" asked Atty. Douglas.

"I did," was the answer.

"What else did you observe?"

"I saw liquor served at one table. There was a disturbance at the booth next to ours and Mr. Sullivan came over and quieted it.

CONFERS WITH CROWLEY.

"Following this visit I went to police headquarters and had a conference with Supt. Michael H. Crowley and Capt. George W. Patterson, head of the vice, liquor and narcotics bureau.

"After that conference Lieut. Daniel J. Hines and Officer Garrett came to the Watch and Ward office and we showed them the evidence from the Ritz."

Cockinos testified that Perry and he and the policeman obtained warrants charging five waiters with violations of the liquor laws. He visited Sullivan, he said, and was asked why the Watch and Ward Society raided the hotel.

"I told Mr. Sullivan there were complaints about 14-year-old girls," said Cockinos. Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle objected and further testimony on that line was ruled out.

"I told Sullivan that there were a number of complaints where two girls were served liquor in the place," testified Cockinos.

ONE WAITER MISSING

Cockinos said he later informed Sullivan one more waiter was wanted, and that Sullivan told him that man's name was McGrail and that he was in New York but he (Sullivan) would let Cockinos know when he returned. That, according to Cockinos, was why he gave Sullivan his telephone number, which became a government exhibit on the first day of the trial.

"I met Callahan (Sullivan's lawyer) and Garrett and told them both somebody was intimidating my witness and offering him $1000," continued the witness. "Callahan said his client was not responsible for any such action and that if he was he would have to get a new lawyer.

"The same day, as a result of information from Perry, I went to the Little building with Perry. I saw a stranger make a signal to Perry to go outside onto Boylston st., which Perry did. I followed.

The first stranger pointed to a second one and said to Perry: 'There is the money man. The second stranger said: 'Lay off, lay off.' Both men ran, the first down Boylston st. and the second across toward the subway entrance. Perry chased the second and caught him and I met them coming back. He said he was Leo Franz of a taxi company and wasn't doing anything.

COMPLIMENTED PERRY.

"Later Perry called me up and said: 'A man called me and wants to give me $1000 if I will lay off the Ritz case and go away.' I instructed Perry not to take any money, and complimented him for calling me. He said the caller wanted an answer later, and I instructed him to make an appointment at the Colonial building. We went there, but the other man never showed up.

"That evening at the Olympia Cafe I was approached by a Charles Martin," said Cockinos, relating the alleged offer of $2000 to $10,000." Martin was a defence witness at the present trial.

Cockinos said he called up Sullivan at a later date and told him he had a warrant for the sixth waiter, McGrail, who was never arrested.

"Sorry, but McGrail's not back from New York," replied Sullivan, according to Cockinos. "But Herbie is here and wants to say hello.'

Cockinos testified that Sullivan then put Atty. Callahan on the wire and the lawyer said: "How many more warrants are you going to get in this case?"

TALKS WITH CALLAHAN.

"They are intimidating my witness and it must stop," replied Cockinos, whereupon Callahan said, according to the witness: "I know that Mr. Sullivan is not implicated in any way and that we are not intimidating your witnesses."

Cockinos denied ever meeting Sullivan for a conversation at Massachusetts ave. and Albany st. at 3 a. m., as Sullivan testified for the government. He said he made complaint to the licensing board which held a hearing. He denied knowing John F. Mullen, a defendant who has pleaded guilty, and said he might have met Gross at Camp Devens, but he did not recall it. He said he met Sidlinger in a law review course.

In cross-examination by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Doyle, Cockinos said he learned of evidence against the sixth Ritz waiter on April 11 but did not apply for a warrant until April 16. He said he did not apply on the 11th because it was late in the day and he waited until the 16th because the other cases were coming up in court that day.

"But you got in touch with Mr. Sullivan and had a talk with him between April 11 and 16?" asked Doyle. Cockinos said, "Yes."

Durant Out of Step With New York City

New York, Feb. 27 (INS)—Dr. Will Durant, speaking to an audience here on "the ten greatest thinkers," expressed wonderment "that in a city of 7,000,000 people, in which 10,000 great men are included," voters selected James J. Walker for mayor.

Einstein, Walt Whitman and Anatole France were described as modern geniuses by Durant. He gave as his list of thinkers Confucius, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Copernicus, Lord Francis Bacon, Isaac Newton, Spinoza, Voltaire, Immanuel Kant and Charles Darwin.

French Fliers Crash on Way to Bangkok

Saigon, French Indo-China, Feb. 27 (AP)—The French aviators Joseph Lebrix and Sergt.-Maj. Antoine Paillard will complete their trip from France aboard the steamer Porthos, arriving March 5, a message received here says. It is not known whether they will make another attempt this year for a complete trip by air.

Their plane was wrecked in a crash which occurred about 122 miles from Rangoon on the hop from Rangoon to Bangkok. The occupants were unhurt.

N. E. FACES MENACE OF FLOODS

With continued thaws predicted for Boston and Massachusetts and with rain still falling in northern New England, flood menace and dangerous traffic condition continued today and were predicted to grow worse.

Both the Connecticut and Merrimack rivers were reported rising rapidly. In the vicinity of Springfield, preparations were already underway for the renewing of dikes and other flood prevention measures.

In Springfield the Connecticut river rose four inches during the night.

In Boston, enlarged street cleaning squads were battling with gutters that were made rivers by melting snow. Automobile travel was handicaped and minor accidents were plentiful.

In Vermont and New Hampshire state officials were watching carefully for dangerous thaws along the upper reaches of the principal rivers. Temperatures slightly lower than those of Massachusetts offered hope that the melting might be sufficiently gradual to minimize flood peril.

At Springfield, a safety margin of only six inches existed along the banks of the swollen Agawam and Connecticut rivers.

Rain and heavy cloud banks appeared everywhere on the U. S. weather map. Storm areas were centralized at Galveston and the Gulf of Mexico, the Rocky mountain district and northern New England.

Forecast for Boston: Mostly cloudy tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature. Moderate westerly winds.

Raging Rivers Flood Pennsylvania Towns

Philadelphia, Feb. 27 (AP)—Flooded by melting snow and heavy rains, Pennsylvania streams today were assuming alarming proportions.

Conditions along the Schuylkill river and its tributaries were acute, and to the west the Susquehanna also was on a rampage.

Perkiomen creek, with its waters 18 feet above normal, endangered lives and property throughout the Perkiomen valley in Montgomery county. More than twenty bungalows along the flats at Oaks and Indian Head Park were almost submerged.

At Pottstown the worst flood in years was reported. The river was 10 feet above normal and rising about a foot an hour.

Bloomsburg reported that 16 hours of steady rain has sent the creeks in Columbia county far out of their banks and caused many persons to vacate their homes.

Lock Haven was threatened with a repetition of the flood of 1918. Cellars in the city were flooded.

200 Families Flee From Flood in Michigan

Monroe, Mich., Feb. 27 (AP)—Monroe today faced serious flood damage from the overflowing of the River raisin, due to the piling up of ice in the stream following moderate temperatures of the last few days.

Two hundred families have been driven from their home. Business houses along Front and Elm sts. have been seriously affected and the owners have begun moving stocks from their basements. The Monroe Hospital has been isolated.

Six Hundred Homeless From Floods in Ohio

Columbus, O., Feb. 27 (INS)—More than 600 people are homeless, property damage is expected to exceed $3,000,000, transportation and communication are crippled and in some places disrupted, as the results of the torrential rains over the central part of Ohio, which caused many streams to go on the rampage.

Flood dangers still loom as the result of the governmental forecast which predicted rain for tomorrow.

At Springfield, Buck Creek broke from its banks, forced more than 200 persons to flee their homes and did property damage approximating $1,500,000. Near Dayton 200 were driven from their homes.

Newark suffered heavily, 75 marooned persons being rescued by police and firemen.

Divorce Given Wife of 'Peaches' Agent

New York, Feb. 27 (INS)—Mrs. Katherine Allen, who named a "Mrs. Browning" as the other woman, today was granted a divorce in White Plains from Edgar Allen, former booking agent for Frances (Peaches) Keenan Browning. The decree was granted by Justice Young who, last December heard testimony of Allen's alleged trysts with a "Mrs. Browning" in the Allen home at Larchmont while Mrs. Allen was away.

Mrs. Roosevelt in Italy

Genoa, Italy, Feb. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the former American President, arrived at Porto Marizio today for a visit with her sister.

LINDY'S WEDDING BELLS WILL PEAL TO WHIR OF PLANES

CABOT DIGS AT 'BIG GUNS'

"Here's to Boston—
Home of the bean and the cod,
Where the Lowells speak only to Cabots,
And the Cabots speak only to God!"

The meter was all knocked out of this famous rhyme today when Harvard and the Back Bay learned of the words uttered in an address at Omaha by Dr. Hugh Cabot, one of the most noted members of his clan.

"The jig is up with the highbrows so far as any superiority complex is concerned, because big business has gobbled both the professional man and his ethics," said Dr. Cabot.

"Professors are practically a thing of the past," continued the man, who has two brothers connected with the teaching staff at Harvard, and who himself was formerly assistant professor of surgery there.

"The physician of the future will practice for big business, and the lawyer will be a corporation counsel," he concluded.

Dr. Cabot made these statements before an Omaha professional men's dinner and a student assembly at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine.

He is dean of the University of Michigan School of Medicine and was formerly surgeon at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he won wide renown. Before the United States entered the war, he took the Harvard Surgical Unit overseas, became a lieutenant-colonel in the British army medical corps and won citations.

He is also an author and a member of most of the exclusive Boston clubs. His son, Hugh, Jr., recently wed Miss Louise Melanson, a Boston nurse, showing that he shares his father's unconcern about the cherished traditions of "high society."

MITCHELL GETS CABINET POST; DONOVAN OUT

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—William D. Mitchell, solicitor-general of the United States, has been selected by President-elect Hoover to be Attorney-General in his Cabinet, and simultaneously with this development today friends of William J. Donovan said he would not occupy any federal office after March 4.

Completion of the Cabinet slate is awaiting further conferences between the President-elect and Donovan, however.

Mr. Mitchell, whose home is in Minnesota, has been listed as a Democrat, but is said to have supported Mr. Hoover in the last election. He was appointed to his present post by President Coolidge.

Mr. Hoover is represented as trying to prevail upon Donovan to accept a post, presumably that of Secretary of War. The assistant to the Attorney-General apparently is reluctant to enter the Cabinet since he was eliminated from consideration for the attorney-generalship.

As soon as the future status of Mr. Donovan is determined, the Cabinet will be completed within 24 or 36 hours. The nominations will be sent to the Senate at the special session immediately after the inauguration of Mr. Hoover Monday.

Gang Massacre Auto Is Found in Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP)—The second automobile to be investigated by the police on a theory that it might have been the car used by the slayers of seven gangsters was found today in Maywood, a suburb.

It had been partly demolished, apparently from an explosion. In it the police found a notebook bearing the name of Al Weinshank, one of the men slain, and Ted Newbury, one of the suspects sought, along with several shotgun shells, a cap and a suit of overalls. Police believed the automobile may have been "planted" purposely to mislead them.

SHAW VISIT U.S.? NOT A CHANCE!

London (AP)—Bernard Shaw is resting from the labors of a new three-act play, "The Apple Cart," announcement of which brought him new invitations to visit the United States, but Shaw resolutely sticks to his decision never to set foot in that bustling land which worships literary lions.

At 72, Shaw fears Americans would make such a fuss over him that life wouldn't be worth living. Years ago, when he would have gone to America, he had to work as hard as a horse. Now he is rich and famous; every year Americans tempt him across the Atlantic, but all fail.

Impressarios who try to sign him for lecture tours ruin their chances by the sheer magnitude of their offers. Great bags of gold dangle before him, but Shaw lectures only for the "causes," not money. He persistently refuses American offers because he knows that the large fees offered would mean vast audiences in great auditoriums wheer his sense of appreciation of his audiences would be negligible.

WON'T TAKE A DIME.

Shaw probably is one of the finest public speakers living, but his subject, or the purpose of the meeting that draws him, must arouse his interest or sympathy. Good business man that he is, he never accepts a penny for his lectures.

The American who can orranize a Fabian society might still entice him to America. But the New York society hostess who offered him $25,000 to cross the ocean, dine with her, converse with her guests for an hour or so and take the next boat home if he wanted to, won't land him, though he lives as long as Methuselah himself.

Here in England Shaw is deluged with invitations, pleas and demands that he be present at all sorts of private and public functions, but those who invite him usually must be satisfied with a postcard.

HE PACKS 'EM IN.

What a drawing card Shaw would be for an American lecture tour! He has a commanding platform presence and a fine voice, with just a pleasing trace of Irish brogue. He is trenchant and vivid, and never fails even during the briefest talks to give play to sparkling Irish wit and humor.

A Shaw lecture in London draws packed houses, although never advertised. Each autumn when Shaw winds up a series of Babian Society lectures, police are on hand to keep order among crowds fighting for a few returned tickets.

Third Cavalry Will Be Hoover Escort

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—The second squadron of the Third Cavalry was designated today by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, marshal of the inaugural parade, as the personal escort of President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover on their trip from the White House to the Capitol on inauguration day and later to escort President Hoover on his return to the White House.

The same regiment furnished the escort for President Harding in 1921 and President Coolidge in 1925.

Room for Wireless, Says Telegraph Head

Berlin, Feb. 27 (AP)—Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, said here today there was room for both telegraph and wireless in the handling of transoceanic messages. He made this statement in response to a question regarding the effect of wireless transmission as a competitor of the older cable method.

145 Died in Riots

Bombay, Feb. 28 (AP)—Home Secretary J. Monteath, in reply to questions in the Legislature today about the recent race riots which terrorized the city, said 145 persons were killed and 743 injured in the disorders.

Bares Name of 'Mystery Baby' in Phone Call

Information that the "mystery baby" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Viglioni of 30 Fulton st., Medford, is a "Donald Sharp," known as "Buster" was revealed today by a telephone message received from a man who refused to reveal his identity.

The baby, only two months old, was taken to the Viglioni home 10 days ago by a pretty girl who said she was his widowed mother—and that she came in response to an advertisement inserted in a magazine by the Viglioni's seeking babies to board.

The girl gave an address in Medford and left the baby there promising to return next day. She did not return. Yesterday she telephoned to Mrs. Viglioni promising to call at her home later in the day. Again she failed to appear. Mrs. Viglioni then sought the assitance of the police.

A checkup of addresses given by the girl in Haverhill, Lawrence, Wollaston, and Medford have failed to reveal any clue to her identity. Mrs. Viglioni plans to turn the boy over to state authorities.

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1929

ARREST TWO IN AUTO DENTED BY BULLETS

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 27 (AP)—Police today arrested two men on suspicion in a bullet-dented automobile in Rahway ave. They gave their names as William McKee, 31, of Lee st., and Wesley Williams, 26, of James st., both of Springfield, Mass. They are being held for investigation.

The car, a roadster, carrying Massachusetts license plates D963C, was stopped by Patrolmen Salzman and Whalen of the scout patrol squad. Examination of the car resulted in the two men being taken to headquarters.

Through the windshield were about 15 bullet holes, the majority of them being found on the left side. The rear glass had been shattered, apparently with buckshot, and the rear of the body was dented with about 30 shots. Police believe marks in the body of the machine were made with buckshot fired from a sawed-off shotgun.

THOMPSON WINS CITY COUNCIL

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP)—A bloodless election returned control of the City Council to Mayor Thompson yesterday.

Extraordinary police precautions were credited with having preserved polling peace, even in the 20th ward, from which one of the aldermanic candidates fled under police guard the day before the election. There were less than two dozen arrests, and these for minor infractions.

The "Thompson Aldermen"—those who have constantly aligned themselves in support of the mayor's program—retained a comfortable control of the council, 33 of them being re-elected for another two-year term. The mayor lost one of his floor leaders, Alderman L. J. Grossman of the Fifth, and four of the six sitting aldermen who were beaten "Thompson men."

In 11 wards no candidate received a majority, this necessitating a run-off election in April. Four of the candidates who must stand for a new vote have been supporters of the mayor.

The outstanding setback suffered by Thompsonians was in the eighth ward where Alder[illegible] William D. Meyering, a persistent critic of the Thompson program, was re-elected.

2 American Women in Alien Law Net

Alton, Hamshire, England, Feb. 27 (AP)—After living in England for 48 hours two American women, Miss Kate Coit and Miss Eliza Coit, residing in the village of Froyle were summoned before a court here on a charge of failing to register as aliens.

When they showed they were never aware of the necessity for so doing the case against them was dismissed, but they had to pay the costs of the action.

Root in Italy

Genoa, Italy, Feb. 27 (AP)—Elihu Root arrived today aboard the steamship Augustus.

Judge Davis, 73, Dies at E. Tisbury

East Tisbury, Feb. 27 (AP)—Everett Allen Davis, judge of the probate court of Dukes County for 14 years, died here today in his 73d year. He waas born in Pawtucket, R. I., and was a graduate of Columbia University law school. His wife survives.

"Hay" Is Rye!

St. Albans, Vt., Feb. 27 (AP)—Customs officials today reported discovery of several hundred bottles of ale in a freight car, the contents of which were billed as baled straw. The car was loaded at St. Alexander, Que., and consigned to a hay dealer in Stafford, Ct.

COOLIDGES ALL READY TO GO

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—Although nearly a month has passed since President and Mrs. Coolidge began preparing their possessions for removal to Northampton, the packing is not complete.

It has, however, reached the odds and ends and been reduced to a few of their most highly-prized belongings that were saved for the last to be carried with them on Monday when they leave for their old Massachusetts home.

In this classification lies a picture of the Cabinet which has hung in the executive offices. Realizing that this photograph, so intimately related to his stay in the White House, may prove a cherished memento in later years, Mr. Coolidge is having particular care taken in its preparation for shipment.

FAREWELL TO CABINET

The President is expected to take to Northampton with him also the chair in which he has presided at the semi-weekly Cabinet sessions. About this lies an old tradition. It is customary for the outgoing President to present his successor with a new chair for use at the Cabinet table, and to take his own with him. The chair Mr. Coolidge will leave for Herbert Hoover has been ordered, but meanwhile his own chair still stands in the Cabinet room awaiting the last meeting the the Coolidge Cabinet Friday.

STEARNS TO NORTHAMPTON

The following evening Mr. Coolidge will say good-by to his group of official advisers. On Saturday evening members of the Cabinet and their wives are to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge at a farewell dinner. Three members of the Cabinet—Secretaries Mellon and Davis of the Labor Department and Postmaster-General New—were in office when the chief executive succeeded President Harding. The remaining seven are all of his own appointment.

After the Cabinet dinner, one more social function will remain before the Coolidges leave the White House. President-elect and Mrs. Hoover, Vice-President-elect Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Edward H. Gann, will be dinner guests at the executive mansion on Sunday.

The trip to Northampton is to be made on the Pennsylvania railroad fast limited, "The Montrealer." Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will be accompanied by Frank W. Stearns of Boston, a close friend of the President, and his confidential assistant, Edward T. Clark.

Says Gray Horses Eat More; Oh, Yes, Yes!

SHE WILL FIGHT FOR BROOKLINE SCHOOL POST

Miss Sarah A. Williams, candidate for a Brookline school committee post, declared flatly today that she will fight charges that she is a non-resident of Brookline and consequently ineligible for the place.

Miss Williams, according to her attorney, Guy E. Healey of Medford, has been a legal resident of Brookline since 1925. A Boston address, alleged to be legally hers, is merely the address of a studio where she gives art lessons, she asserted.

Town Clerk Fred B. Richardson of Brookline declared he is awaiting an opinion by Town Counsel Philip S. Parker on the necessity of holding a public hearing in Miss Williams' behalf.

Since the election is scheduled for Tuesday and the hearing, if held, would be called four days before election, Brookline voters were today expecting quick action.

HUB MEN URGE TARIFF CHANGE

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—Further changes in the administrative sections of the tariff law were proposed to the House ways and means committee today by Walter E. D[illegible]ty on behalf of the Boston Steamship Freight and Customs Brokers' association, urged several technical changes in the law, one of which would relieve brokers of any fur[illegible]r liability when it is disclosed that the consigner has complied with the law as to the correct dutiable value of imported goods.

Doherty said many sections of the law were antiquated and worked a hardship on importers who, he said, pay $600,000,000 a year to the government in duties.

Joseph F. Lockett of Boston asked that one judge in a customs trial court be permitted to try a case. The present law provides two judges of a court of three must sit on a case.

Attempted Theft of Massacre Evidence

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP)—An attempt to rifle the state's attorney's private file of gang massacre evidence was revealed today. The knob of the door leading to the office of John A. Swanson, district attorney, was removed and the lock pried open. The office was ransacked a few hours after police had broadcast an order for the arrest of 17 men in connection with the murders.

Documents on the inquiry involving the Chicago sanitary district and the police department were also in the safe. Orders were given that a close guard be kept over the offices.

Given Jail Sentence

Brockton, Feb. 27—George Ellis of Hull, who was jailed for 60 days, came up from Plymouth Jail to ask pardon of Judge Arthur F. Butterworth. Instead he was given an additional jail sentence.

ACES PLAN TO HONOR COLONEL

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Correspondent
(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

New York, Feb. 27—The whirring of aeroplane propellers will blend with the pealing of wedding bells at the nuptials of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne Morrow.

For those flying musketeers of the air—the quiet birdmen of America—will be there, with all motors going strong.

Lindbergh is one of the most active members of this secret fraternal organization of famous aviators.

And these flying lads are secret. No pedestrian has been known to crash one of their irregular meetings. Perhaps that's how "Lindy" learned to keep his lips sealed concerning a certain romance.

Like the fictional musketeers, the motto of the flying fraternity is "All for one, and one for all."

NEED NO INVITATIONS

Before hopping off from Long Island for Mexico City with a wedding ring in his flying jacket, Lindbergh sent the word around, according to the story in circulation today, that he expected his comrades to attend the ceremony. Formal invitations would follow when date and place were announced.

"Who needs an invitation?" grinned Bert Acosta, who flew to Paris with Comdr. Richard E. Byrd and Bernt Balchen, also members of the quiet birdmen.

Other members of this famous flying fraternity include Clarence Chamberlin, George Haldeman, Casey Jones, Jimmy Doolittle and practically every well-known aviator in America. In addition, foreign fliers who have gained fame have been made honorary members.

These include Dieudonne Costes and Joseph LeBrix, Frenchmen, who flew from Paris to South America; Sir Allan Cobham, British, who flew from London to South Africa; Pat Fitzmaurice and Hermann Koehl, of the transatlantic Bremen flight.

WOULD FLY TO WEDDING.

Of course, certain members of the fraternity are scattered over the world at the present time. Commander Byrd and Balchen are at the South Pole, for instance. Pat Fitzmaurice, the Irishman, arrived here the other day.

Capt. Harry Bruno, one of the charter members of the quiet birdmen pointed out that being a secret organization their plans could not be made public.

"I imagine most of the boys will fly to Lindbergh's wedding if they are invited," Bruno admitted.

Bruno intimated that the wedding would not take place in Mexico City.

Lindy and Love to Fly Over Mountain of Fire

Mexico City, Feb. 27 (AP)—An air excursion over Mexico City, possibly as far as the nearby twin volcanoes, with his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, is planned by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

After two days in the romance-laden atmosphere of sleepy old Cuernavaca, the aviator was back again today in this capital, within easy reach of Valbuena flying field and his plane.

It is understood his plane, the four-passenger City of Wichita, will be trundled from its hangar for the trip of the engaged pair.

Flight from Valbuena to Mexico City is a matter of minutes; a short extension of the excursion would carry the two over Popocatepetl, "fire mountain," and Ixtaccihuatl, "sleeping woman," snow-capped volcano peaks 50 miles from the capital.

Aztec legend made of Popocatepetl, the abode of their war god and the plume of smoke which is sometimes seen over it, gives rise even now to superstitious fear among Mexican Indians.

Part of Linbergh's courtship of Miss Morrow took place on a former flight of the two in this direction. While opportunity has not afforded frequent flights with her fiancee, Miss Morrow is an aviation enthusiast and is expected to fly often with him.

Return of Lindbergh and Miss Morrow, her sister, Elizabeth, and Mrs. Morrow to Mexico City was unexpected. A few minutes prior to their arrival by motor car the American embassy had given out the information that plans of the affianced pair were not known.

FLAG CONTEST OFFERS SCHOOL CHILDREN RARE OPPORTUNITY

EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS IN TOUR PRIZES ARE MANY

School boys and school girls throughout New England how would you like to take a trip around the world?

How would you like to spend three months in travelling? Would you not like to obtain two years of education in a three months' tour of the world, to make the supreme adventure of travel—the dream trip of your life, with all expenses defrayed, complete travelling wardrobe, and $200 in spending money?

All you have to do is to enroll in the great patriotic, nation-wide Flag Contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association. Enroll now. Make sure that your name is among those that are now working hard for this grand national award. You have a chance to be their guest.

How would you like a two weeks' pilgrimage to the patriotic shrines of America?

How would you like to visit Saratoga, New York, where the surrender of Burgoyne took place; and Newburgh, New York, where the house Gen. Washington used as his headquarters when his army was in Newburgh is located. It is now a memorial building containing interesting relics of the Revolutionary days.

NUMEROUS AWARDS

How would you like to visit West Point, Uncle Sam's great military plant, where American boys study the art of war so that when the Flag is to be defended we have trained leaders to instruct and command the [illegible] soldiers of the nation?

Would you like to take a trip down the beautiful historic Hudson river, the [illegible] of America," with its famous Palisades and its ever-changing, entrancing scenery, "nature's great movie."

Trips to these points of historic interest and many others are to be given to the Regional winners in the Flag Contest. You have a chance to visit these patriotic shrines as guests of the United Flag Association.

Listen again, school boys and school girls. How would you like to be the recipient of a $200 scholarship. This is but another set of the amazing awards offered to the school boys and school girls taking part in this—the greatest patriotic educational movement ever conducted.

How would you like to wear the Cross of Honor, the decoration which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was the first man to receive? This decoration, which invests the boy with the title "Knight of the Flag," and the girl, "Lady of the Flag," will be presented by the President of the United States or some other distinguished person either at the White House in Washington or some other suitable place.

In addition to these wonderful opportunities there will be testimonials and honorable mentions awarded as well.

These wonderful awards are open to YOU. Why not take advantage of this opportunity to win.

BOARDS NOW FORMING

Once again the Flag Contest Editor urges you to hustle up your teacher or head of your local organizations and any responsible adult to send along their applications to conduct a local contest unit.

The organization of such a unit and the conducting of the same is simplicity itself. There is absolutely nothing in the rules and regulations that cannot be easily carried out.

Hence, school boys and school girls who desire to take part in this Contest should, by all means, make every effort to secure enrollment with organizations now at work in their cities and towns.

It is up to you, School Boy and School Girl to remember that you may be passing up a golden opportunity of not only seeing patriotic America, but the many wonders of the World.

RULES ARE SIMPLE

The Flag Contest Editor wishes again to inform the youths of New England that Flag Boards are now in process of being formed. In instances where individuals undertake to sponsor a contest locally, the rules governing the competition require that this person organize a Flag Board, consisting of five persons, who will function as the nominal head of the contest unit.

The duties of the Flag Board members will be light, and the board is designed largely for the purpose of giving a status of organization to the local activities. Further information on this point may be had by communicating with the Flag Contest Editor.

The augmented list of travel and scholarship prizes apparently has had an especial appeal to the youth of the nation. To most of them, entering the contest appears to be an easy way to become eligible for the awards, which consist of four trips around the world, thirty-six trips to the historical spots in the East, where American history was made, and one hundred and eight scholarships, valued at $200 each, and available for any institution of learning which the winner may select.

For the benefit of those persons who desire to conduct a local contest unit the Flag Contest Editor prints again today the following simple method of procedure:

1—Obtain the contestants.

2—Appoint a jury of award to mark the papers of the contestants and determine the awards.

3—Arrange for public recitation of the essays which accompany the answers to the 75 questions which are a part of the contest, and arrange for the presentations of the awards.

FORM BOARD TODAY

For the contestants themselves they have only to answer 75 questions relating to the history and glory of the American Flag and the institutions for which it stands, and to write the brief accompanying essay on the subject of "Old Glory's Greatest Glory." The answers and essays go to a local committee of judges selected by the person sponsoring the local contest.

The best of the offerings will be sent to the Flag Contest Editor for submission to the regional board of awards. It is this board which will select the regional champions—one boy and one girl from each of the 18 regions into which the country has been divided.

From this group of thirty-six will subsequently be chosen the national champions—two boys and two girls. And the thirty-six regional champions will be taken on the two weeks' tour of patriotic shrines of the United States.

The three boys and three girls from each of the eighteen regions making the first second and third highest marks will get $200 scholarships in any institution of learning which they may select.

The Boston Evening American, regional sponsoring newspaper, today prints eight additional questions, which makes the total questions to date 66.

The Flag Contest Editor also repeats that this should not in any way discourage schools, organizations or individuals from participating in this Contest. There is still time, but he urges that the enrollments be made as rapidly as possible.

Write to the Flag Contest Editor of the Boston Evening American for any further information and for reprints of the questions already published.

Film
that discolors teeth and fosters serious tooth and gum disorders.

White Teeth turned dull by Film

The new way dentists urge to restore teeth to dazzling brilliance—to combat dental troubles.

SCIENCE has made a significant discovery. The cause of dull, discolored teeth is found to be the chief cause of serious tooth and gum disorders. That cause is a film that forms on teeth.

You can feel film with your tongue—a slippery, viscous coating. It clings to teeth and gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs stains from food and smoking to turn white teeth "off color" and cloud their brilliance. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, plus tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

To remove film dentists prescribe the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film so that brushing easily removes it.

Start today. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

XAVIER NOVENA TO BE OPENED MONDAY

The novena of grace in honor of St. Francis Xavier opens at the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Monday.

For the first time in the many years that the novena has been conducted a special noonday mass will be celebrated daily at 12:15 by the Rev. Charles E. Lane, S. J., in conjunction with the services. Other masses will be at 8 and 9 a. m. The novena annually attracts thousands. Services are conducted hourly in the upper church from 3 in the afternoon until 9 in the evening and in the lower church from 3:30 until 8:15. The principal services are at 8 o'clock in the upper church, when the Rev. James L. McGovern, S. J., preaches, and at 8:15 the lower church, when the Rev. George E. Hanlon, S. J., delivers the sermon.

Proceeds will be devoted to the building fund of the Gate of Heaven Church.

MEXICO OBEYED BY 500 PRIESTS

Mexico City, Feb. 27 (AP)—Official records today showed that more than 500 Roman Catholic priests and prelates had complied with government orders to register their addresses prior to March 1.

Those complying include a number of bishops and high church officials. Two of these, Monsignor Francisco Benegas, bishop of Queretaro, and Monsignor Nichols Corona, bishop of Parantla, in giving their addresses wrote letters to Acting Secretary of Interior Canales denouncing the bombing of the presidential special recently.

Monsignor Corona declared all "unfanatical" Catholics were horrorized by the attempt on the President's life and asserted the Catholic religion did not need to be defended "by such cowardly arms."

TROTZKY SAYS STALIN PLOTS 'FRAMEUP'

Berlin, Feb 27 (AP)—Leon Trotzky, in an article published today in Volkswille, charged the Stalin group in Soviet Russia with a policy of inciting secret provocateurs to plant evidence incriminating the opposition Communists in Russia.

"The mere announcement that the opposition is a counter-revolutionary party does not suffice," Trotzky wrote. "Nobody takes such a declaration seriously. The more oppositionists are excluded and sent into banishment, the more their numbers have grown within the party. Stalin admitted this in 1927.

"There remains but one thing for him: the attempt to draw a bloody line between the official party and the opposition. Extreme necessity compels him to bring the opposition into connection with attempts and with preparations for armed rebellion.

"The strongest hindrance to such a plan is the leadership of the opposition. But the phyical destruction of old revolutionaries known to the whole world would entail grave political difficulties. Hence Stalin's plan. First, to accuse the opposition of 'preparations for armed rebellion' as a prerequisite to new reprisals; second, to be in a great hurry to banish the head of the opposition from the country in order to have his hands free for the hangman's work on such oppositionists who are little known, especially abroad."

Trotzky then predicted various "frame-ups" in the near future to discredit the opposition and asserted that several weeks ago such an attempt, "conceived according to all the rules of Bonapartist provocation," was made but failed.

Friends of Trotzky Wage Battle in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—Table legs, umbrellas and canes were wielded in Labor Temple by rival factions of the Workers' (Communist) party at a meeting in protest against the deportation from Russia of Leon Trotzky, former Soviet leader.

The meeting was disbanded by police reserves. Trouble started when 30 followers of the Stalin regime tried to howl down speakers. The Trotzky faction, numbering about 150, accepted the challenge, and in a melee that followed men and women battled in all parts of the hall.

Offer 17,273 Bills in Congress, but Only 2716 See Light

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—Members of the House have to date sent 17,273 bills on their way through the legislative machinery during the Seventieth Congress. During the first session 14,143 bills were introduced, and during the short session, which will end on March 4, 3130 have been introduced.

Of this number only 2716 have been reported by committees. One was an omnibus pension bill embodying settlements for several hundred individuals.

In addition to the bills, 342 House resolutions, 429 joint resolutions and 59 concurrent resolutions have been introduced.

150 Descendants Mourn Woman, 119

Sanford, Fla., Feb. 27 (AP)—While more than 150 children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren mourned, six middle-aged grandsons bore to the grave the body of Mrs. Viney Oglesby. Mrs. Oglesby died at an announced age of 119 years.

At the head of the mourning family stood Mrs. J. Hilliard, 85, Mrs. Oglesby's oldest daughter while eight other aged sons and daughters stood beside the grave.

'MAGIC' FAILS HER AS COURT SETS FINE

A suspended sentence of 18 months in prison, with five years' probation and a fine of $1000 was indicated today in Federal court by Judge John A. Peters when Madame Sadie L. Perry, Lynn "miracle woman," appeared for sentence.

Imposition of sentence was deferred until Wednesday owing to the intimation by counsel that motions in connection with the conviction were to be filed.

Madame Perry was found guilty by a Federal jury of using the mails to defraud, through the dissemination of "magic" formulae and alleged remedies for diseases

Fraternity Blood Can't Save Athlete

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP) — John Acher's fraternity brothers have been informed there is nothing they can do to save his life. The entire Northwestern University chapter of Phi Delta Theta offered to submit to blood transfusions in an effort to save the athlete.

The offer was declined by Acher's father, who said there seemed little chance of recovery. Acher, a member of the Northwestern football squad, was shot last fall when hoodlums became angered after Acher's car grazed a fender of their machine.

Hammond Escaped Death; Biggest 'Party' Scheduled

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—Lying in prison under sentence of death was the perilous position, 32 years ago, of John Hays Hammond, the famous mining engineer who last week was the third man in its history to receive the highest medal of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers—Herbert Hoover was similarly honored last year.

Like Hoover, Hammond is a rather unusual type of American in that he did not stay at home but won fame and fortune in foreign lands. The common thing is for foreign youths to come here and make their mark. Hammond, like Hoover, reversed the process, both having sailed forth to distant lands and earned reputations as mining engineers.

Hammond was sentenced to death after the ill-starred Jameson raid in the Transvaal, with which although he was an ardent reformer, he had no sympathy. For weeks his life hung by a thread. Old Kruger, president of the republic, was hard to move. Mrs. Hammond, a native of Mississippi, toiled frantically on her condemned husband's behalf and finally the sentence was commuted to 15 years' imprisonment. Later a fine of $125,000 won his release.

Mr. Hammond was regarded as the ablest mining engineer in South Africa. On his judgment millions of dollars were spent on properties he figured would contain gold. Cecil Rhodes, in some respects the most notable giant in the last hundred years of Britain's history, became a great admirer of Hammond and the two did much for the development of South Africa's mineral resources.

After returning to the United States Mr. Hammond was the highest salaried man in the country as the Guggenheims' star engineer.

John Hays Hammond, Jr., promises to become even more famous than his father. Although he is only 40, he has already won wide fame as an inventor and is now immersed in problems of vast importance.

From the dirty dungeon of Pretoria prison to the central figure at the great gathering in the Waldorf-Astoria is a far cry.

The greatest "party" of the year is scheduled to be held at Dearborn on October 21, when Edison, with the aid of veteran former assistants, will remake the first electric light he invented 50 years ago. The quaint ceremony will take place in exactly the original Edison laboratory, which has been faithfully transplanted to the Ford museum.

The President of the United States is expected to attend and the whole nation may be asked to switch off all lights for an instant and turn them on again as the newly-made Edison light bursts into glow, symbolizing Edison's creation of the light now used throughout the world. It may be, too, that into this original Edison laboratory will come congratulatory radio messages direct from the lips of kings and rulers throughout the world.

For no other human being on earth could such an international demonstration be spontaneously given. From the King of England down there isn't a man who would not feel honored at being invited to pay tribute to the Wizard of Menlo Park.

And is it not entirely fitting that mankind pay homage to Edison while he is still with us rather than wait until his light has gone out?

From intimate friends of Edward L. Doheny comes the pathetic news that they fear he will not long survive the shock of his son's murder. The relations between the older and younger Doheny were not only those of father and son; the two were the closest of pals. Notwithstanding all his millions—probably 50 of them—Doheny in later years has been one of the most unhappy men in America. And now his cup of bitterness has overflowed. He is past 72.

Some leaders have conspicuous ability to make men; others haven't. Carnegie had, Rockefeller had, Marshall Field had, the original J. P. Morgan had, Schwab has, Pierre S. duPont has; in his heyday, Durant had, C. A. Coffin had, and James J. Hill had, in unusual degree. He was a trainer—a somewhat ruthless trainer—of railway executives of outstanding worth.

More recently Charles H. Markham, of Illinois Central, has enjoyed the reputation of being among the foremost railway heads in America, comparable with the late E. P. Ripley, the rugged giant who raised the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe from bankruptcy to affluence. Mr. Markham's successor as president of the Illinois Central, L. A. Downs, was Markham-trained. And now another Markham lieutenant, John J. Pelley, has been elevated from the presidency of the Central of Georgia, an Illinois Central subsidiary, to the presidency of the New York, New Haven & Hartford. This is among the most important railway jobs in the country under existing circumstances.

Few young men reach the top in railroading while still young. Railway promotion usually comes slowly even to the ablest. They have to rise step by step over a long series of years. Mr. Pelley has done well; he is only fifty. A native of Illinois, he received a good education although he is not a college graduate. He began as a station clerk in his native town of Anna. Mr. Downs, his predecessor in the Central of Georgia, attained presidential rank when fifty-two, and took the helm of the Illinois Central when fifty-five.

The stock market tug-of-war between the bulls and the bears is still undecided. So is the tug-of-war between the Federal Reserve Board and the stock market. It would be rash to jump to the conclusion that the Reserve Board will be defeated.

MURRAY EARNS $1,800,000

Murray Corp. of America is understood to have earned in 1928 over $1,800,000 as against $279,000 in 1927, which was the first year of operation for the reorganized Murray Body Corp. Had the management not chosen to absorb into the income account a number of special charges the net after charges would have been close to $3,000,000.

As it is, the balance for the common stock outstanding most of the year, 268,500 no-par shares as against a current outstanding volume of 538,000 shares, was approximately $6.70 a share. In 1927 the balance was but 97 cents a share.

Despite the usual let-down in automobile production in the final quarter of the year and the unsettlement due to introduction of new models, net was around $475,000 as compared with a slight loss for the same period of 1927.

Murray Corp. is now in the midst of its most ambitious expansion program. A new unit adjoining present facilities is being built in Detroit and a brand new plant is under way at Memphis. Additions will more than double present capacity. Big savings in manufacturing expenses are assured and large savings in freight by reason of the preliminary work on lumber that will be done in Tennessee.

Murray has been quietly booking some important new contracts from some of the biggest automobile manufacturers in the country, work on which will start with early spring in the new plant. It would be no surprise if in 1929 Murray built 200,000 bodies or twice the volume of last year.

INTERNATIONAL Cement Corp. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1 on common, payable March 28.

8 Ford Companies Forming Overseas

Shares of at least eight European Ford motor companies, now in the process of formation, will reach the United States within the next six months for sale to investors through private channels. The new companies about to be formed include French, German, Italian, Belgian, Spanish, Dutch, Swedish and Finnish Ford. All will be under the control of the Ford Motor, Ltd., which will retain 60 per cent of stock interest. In each case 40 per cent of the capital stock will be sold to citizens of the country in which the Ford concern will operate. American investors will be obliged to pay a premium above offering price.

Maine Ranks High in Water Power Listing

AUGUSTA, Me., Feb. 27—The State of Maine, ranking seventh of all the states in the United States in developed water power, now stands third among all the states east of the Rocky Mountains in potential water power resources. The average cost of commercial power now purchased from public utility companies in Maine is less than in any state of the East except South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, while rates for large blocks of power in Maine are no higher, or even less, than they are in those three states.

These are among the salient facts in the Maine Development Commission's report on the state's water power situation, a survey of which was authorized by the governor and council on November 27 last. The commission's report, as prepared by a special state-wide committee, has been delivered to Governor William Tudor Gardiner and his council and turned over to the legislature.

Other outstanding findings of the survey committee are:

Installed capacity of Maine's plants in a year of average stream flow is sufficient to produce a surplus of power amounting to about 670,000,000 kilowatt hours over and above the power actually produced in 1927 by these plants.

It is further possible, through storage reservoirs and stream regulation alone, to increase this surplus hydro-electric energy to about 900,000,000 kilowatt hours.

It would then be possible still further to increase this surplus of hydro-electric energy to a total of 3,835,000,000 kilowatt hours by the development of water power sites which are now economically practicable.

The rate of increase in the use of electric energy in Maine is approximately 41,000,000 kilowatt hours per year.

Twenty-four per cent of Maine's farms are electrified, this percentage comparing relatively with any state in the Union.

Electrified farms of the state now use approximately 3,600,000 kilowatt hours per year, and if all the farms of the state were electrified and used the same average amount per farm, they would use 15,000,000 kilowatt hours per year. The existing surplus in 1927 was 44 times this amount.

The present average cost of all power generated by Maine's public utility companies, measured at the station switchboard, is practically the same as that of the best modern steam generating stations.

The average revenue, the committee finds, received by Maine's public utility companies in 1927 was 1.33 cents per kilowatt hour. The cost to the larger manufacturing establishments producing their own power is in some cases it is noted, much less than this amount.

Existing water power installations could produce in a year of average flow a total of 2,670,620,000 kilowatt hours. As compared with this, the use in 1927 (both water and steam generated) was 2,237,760,000 kilowatt hours, leaving a surplus of 432,860,000.

"The surplus in an average year" the report says, "over energy produced from water power is 678,080,000 kilowatt hours. By far the greater part of this surplus power is secondary, for which there is a relatively small demand within the State of Maine, but for which there is a ready market in the industrial sections of eastern Massachusetts where steam is the principal source of energy. (Secondary power is defined by the committee as power which is available from time to time in excess of primary power which is power always available on demand).

"The present cost of energy generated by the public utility companies for all purposes averages 6.8 mills at the power house switchboard and, after allowing for transformation and transmission costs and losses, 9.67 mills per kilowatt hour at the low voltage side of the distributing substation. These costs include taxes and interest, but not depreciation. It is estimated that the corresponding costs, with all the practicable developments completed, and loaded to capacity, would average 3.6 mills at the power house switchboard, and 5.8 mills at the low voltage side of the distributing substation. The unit costs increase rapidly as the distance increases from the point of origin of power.

"Electrical energy can now be generated by steam in the most modern large power stations at a cost per kilowatt hour, measured at the power house switchboard ranging from 6.5 mills to 13.5 mills including depreciation, taxes and interest. The steam station has the advantage ordinarily of location close to its market, thus reducing transmission costs to a minimum."

Jardine in New Post to Use Ideas on Marketing

WILLIAM M. JARDINE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP)—As counsel for the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, which he will become on his voluntary retirement as Secretary of Agriculture March 4, William M. Jardine is stepping into a position to develop co-operative marketing to the extent of its manifold ramifications.

In the four years of his administration Jardine has placed above everything else the department's efforts to encourage and aid orderly marketing of farm produce. He consistently maintained that the practise, once definitely established, would be one of the cardinal principles of farm relief.

The Federated Fruit Growers is a co-operative sales agency operating in virtually every important market in the United States. It was created and is supported by co-operatives handling such highly seasonal fruits as peaches in Georgia and watermelons in Florida—fruits for which the market period is extremely short and always crowded. Big fruit and vegetables co-operatives, which have an all year market, are not members.

The working scheme of the federation is simple and effective. It places representatives in the various sectional markets to handle the produce shipped from co-operatives in the territory. Thus through a single agency as many as 30 or 40 co-operatives, all in the same business, may have their market interests protected and their produce handled without the expense and competitive practise of placing their own men at the market.

In his new job Jardine will have headquarters in Washington, where he will have at his command every facility for developing the co-operative marketing theories he has espoused as Secretary of Agriculture. Announcing his retirement, Jardine said he would offer whatever assistance his knowledge of the subject might be to President Hoover and the new agricultural secretary should it be their policy to continue co-operative marketing promotion.

Jardine said in announcing his resignation that he owed it to his family and to himself to return to private life. His new job is described as "offering an ambitious salary."

His friends say Jardine is a triumph of personality. Although he has a string of titles and degrees that fill half a column in Who's Who he is humble in the vast store of his technical and practical knowledge. He is recognized as a foremost authority on marketing, agronomy and dry-land farming, is famous for his "common sense" economics, and is probably the worst bridge player in Washington. He celebrated his 50th birthday last month.

Northeastern Power Earnings Announced

Preliminary statement of Northeastern Power Corp. for year ended Dec. 31, 1928, shows net income of $11,686,744 after interest, taxes, depreciation, etc. After allowing for all prior charges there was balance available for common stock of $10,819,304. Gross income from all sources amounted to $18,262,914.

Nashawena Mills Displays a Loss

Nashawena Mills reports for the year ended December 31, 1928, an operating loss, before depreciation, of $154,534. This compares with net profit after all charges, including depreciation, in 1927 of $413,837.

STEEL STEADY, ANACONDA AT NEW HIGH

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, Feb. 27—The copper, steel and amusement company stocks led the move to higher prices in trading today.

After the close of Tuesday's market the Steel Corporation announced its plan for the increase of its capitalization to $1,250,000,000 and the extinguishment of its bonded debt, but since the conditions for the issuance of the new stocks have not been worked out, there was nothing on which to base a new move in the stick, and "Big Steel" sold fractionally above and below 187.

Close to $500,000,000 will be needed for the March increase and dividend settlements, in preparation for which the banks are expected to make heavy calls on the call loan market. The renewal rate of 8 per cent was unchanged from yesterday, but Wall Street looked for a higher rate before the end of the day.

Anaconda, at the head of the copper stocks, forged ahead to a new high above 140, the highest price on record, a total gain of close to 85 points since the middle of 1928. Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and other well known copper shares continued their spectacular upward move.

Since the close of Tuesday's market copper metal sold in the New York market at 18½ cents a pound, and in export markets at 18¾ cents.

Strength of Loew's Inc., which jumped another 3 points to 84½, accompanied rumors of a merger with Warner Brothers. The shorts were again crowded in the oil stocks, pushing up the prices of Pan-American, Mexican Seaboard, Marland and other well known oils.

B. & M. EARNS $331,886 IN JANUARY

The Boston & Maine Railroad earned in January a net income of $331,886, which compares with a net income of $275,929 in January, 1928.

Operating revenues for the month were $6,041,092, an increase over last January of $145,479. An increase in freight revenue of $155,296 was offset in part by a continued decrease in passenger revenue, amounting to $49,136.

Under a new policy adopted at the instance of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the 1929 tie renewal expenditure is being spread equally over the 12 months, it is stated. This accounts for the bulk of the increase of $276,676 in maintenance of way expense. Maintenance of equipment expenditures decreased $149,225 as a result of improved condition of rolling stock and retirement of obsolescent equipment. Transportation expense was reduced $78,497.

The figures for January, with comparisons, follow:

	Jan. '29	Jan. '28
Operating revenues	$6,041,092	$5,895,612
Operating expenses	4,613,762	4,557,149

SAMUEL INSULL
President of the People's Gas Light & Coke Company

Answering recently circulated reports, Samuel Insull, president of the People's Gas Light & Coke Company, at the annual meeting, said there will be no stock dividend or split-up by the company.

Mr. Insull also denied a report to the effect that People's Gas Light was contemplating a merger with another company.

Retiring directors and officers were re-elected.

NEW HAVEN IN GOOD EARNING FIGURES

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, in which Chairman E. G. Buckland has been a leading figure in upbuilding, continues to show good earning figures. One can readily imagine that of late too much stress has been laid in occasional news articles on the loss in passenger traffic which is being made up elsewhere by most of the railroads.

Perhaps the one big explanation of why the New York Federal Reserve has not been allowed by Washington authorities to advance its rediscount rate lies in the announcement that the U. S. Treasury will borrow approximately $500,000,000 on March 15. The Treasury will announce an offer of new securities soon after Inauguration Day, in order to retire $571,000,000 of short term securities which fall due.

March income tax payments are expected to amount to more than $500,000,000. They will make up any difference between the amount borrowed and the sum paid off, and provide funds to run the Government through the next quarter.

About two years ago this column discussed noise in business plants as a reducer of efficiency. We were considerably surprised at the time to find that no data on the subject had been gathered at Washington. Probably you have noticed considerable advertising during the past few months in connection with appliances designed to increase industrial efficiency by reducing noise.

Now another lessener of industrial efficiency, poor lighting, is being studied. A report (Public Health Bulletin No. 181) of a study of the relationship of illumination to ocular efficiency and ocular fatigue among the letter separators in the Chicago post office, has just been issued by Surgeon General H. S. Cumming of the U. S. Public Health Service.

This study was made in the main post office in Chicago from 1924 to 1926, in one of the sections of the mailing division. The purposes of the study were (1) to determine the degree of illumination under which the distribution of mail might be done with the greatest ease and efficiency; and (2) to demonstrate ocular fatigue, if possible, and to determine its relation to different degrees of illumination; (3) to obtain any information that might add to the present knowledge of the relation of illumination to the conservation of vision.

Seventy-eight men were employed in the Wisconsin section in sorting mail, some working as day clerks and some as night clerks. General lighting was installed in the section, the intensity of the illumination under which the men worked was varied by steps from 2.74 to 10.72 foot-candles, and an investigation was made on the effect of the degree of illumination upon the speed of sorting mail. This was facilitated by the record kept by the post-[illegible] of the amount of mail sorted daily by each man.

Early in the investigation, however, it was found that not only the intensity of illumination but also the amount of mail to be sorted and the mental attitude of the worker affected the speed of sorting. Probably, as a result of the influence of these other factors, it was found that only for the sorting of small letter mail by the night shift, where there was a continuous and heavy supply of mail, could a marked relation be detected between degree of illumination and rate of sorting. In this case, in going from an illumination of 2.7 to 10.7 foot-candles there was found to be an increase of about 8 per cent in the speed of sorting.

On account of the difficulty in obtaining definite results for the routine sorting of mail, it was decided early in the investigation to parallel the routine sorting of mail with tests on the sorting of 1000 specially prepared cards under varying degrees of illumination, from 2.41 to 17.67 foot-candles. These tests showed a marked relation of speed of sorting to degree of illumination, the "looking time," or the approximate time required to read addresses on the cards, decreasing about 8 per cent when the illumination was increased from 2.5 to 10 foot-candles.

In an attempt to find the effect of the degree of illumination upon ocular fatigue, a special piece of apparatus was designed in which a broken circle was exposed as a test object for 0.011 of a second, and the subject being examined was required to tell the direction of the break in the circle. This is believed to involve a special form of visual acuity, which might by analogy be called "snap acuity," since the time of exposure is so short that accommodation and fixation in this case are negligible.

The subject was tested shortly after beginning work in the morning, and again shortly before stopping work in the afternoon. Snap acuity was found to be slightly lower at the close of the day's work than at the beginning, but no relation was observed between snap acuity and the degree of illumination under which the subject had been working. It was found, however, that snap acuity improved after the subjects had worked under high illumination for a sufficient length of time, and correspondingly decreased after working under low illumination. This phenomenon has never been observed before, and is very important if it can be confirmed.

Periodical examinations were made of the eyes of the men. They showed that the percentage of refractive errors among the clerks examined was rather large. Fifty per cent of them wore glasses. The percentages of other ocular defects found during the examinations seem to agree with those previously found by the United States Public Health Service and other investigators.

Research Helps Business Ride Waves of Progress

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—Success in these momentous years of transition in American business has come primarily to enterprises which deliberately sought to quicken the tides of progress, whereas failure was the reward of those who attempted to buck the tides.

Nowadays, advances in business methods and in inventions no longer depend mainly on accident, but are deliberately planned and bought and paid for. The great industrial and public utility corporations appropriate huge sums each year for research and experiment. Those appropriations represent their investment in newer ways not yet discovered. Research men are paid to shake new secrets from the bushes of hidden knowledge.

The Western Electric Co., which manufacture equipment for the Bell Telephone System, for example, insures progress by maintaining an engineering organization of more than 2000 men whose task it is to plan and prepare for manufacturing parts in increasingly better ways.

Willingness on the part of big business to pay out huge annual sums for research reflects a dynamic attitude toward life. An earlier generation of business men was more inclined to follow known methods. In attempting to illustrate that the search for quality pays, D. Levinger, engineer of manufacture of the Western Electric Co., said:

"In completing a telephone call, more than one hundred electrical connections must be made by relays and keys. To insure that each connection shall be perfect, it is necessary to use platinum or alloys of other precious metals for the contact material, and originally small rivets of the precious metal were fastened through holes in the contact spring. Now the shank of each rivet contains a very small amount of platinum but seventy-six million are needed each year, and the platinum in the shanks of seventy-six million rivets costs many thousands of dollars. As the result of development work, an ingenious machine was developed which cuts off a small piece of contact metal from a wire, welds it to the springs and shapes it. This method is much faster than the former process, but in this particular case that feature shrinks into insignificance compared to the saving in material. Based on average output and the present cost of contact material, the yearly saving due to this single improvement is just about half a million dollars.

"But the motto of development work is: A good way is only one step toward a better way. Another study is now well along and gives good promise of producing a further great saving."

Atlantic City, America's playground, aspires for more serious recognition. It is seeking to do for American industry what the Leipzig Fair does in promoting German industry. The plan next August is to divert the attention of vacation seekers with displays of the products of American industry.

The revolution in retailing, which the growth of chain stores accelerates, is something that all storekeepers should be thinking about. Instead of making faces at the chains, the prudent storekeepers are studying and, when feasible, adopting their improved methods.

"Retail distribution is now undergoing profound changes," Walter S. Hayward and Percival White point out in their newly revised volume on chain stores. They add: "It is the opinion of many authorities that mass selling is the remedy for excessive costs of distribution, just as mass production was applied successfully to the reduction of manufacturing costs. The mail-order house, the department store, and the chain store system are the forms of retailing which merchandise on a quantity basis. While the first two methods are showing a steady growth, it is the chain system which is revolutionizing retail distribution.

"If the small independent store is to survive, even making allowance for the advantages which it possesses in the personal supervision of store activities and the personal contact with customers, it is widely believed that some method of procuring the benefits of mass selling must be obtained.

"The department store has not ordinarily been considered as a competitor of chain systems, but no less an authority than E. A. Filene, president of William Filene's Sons Company, of Boston, Mass., predicts that department stores must adopt chain methods of mass selling if they are to maintain their position of dominance.

Whatever one may think of Mr Filene's prophecy, it is, of course part of the record that well-managed department stores in neighborhoods honeycombed by chain stores have been able to thrive. The real victims of the chains are the inefficient small merchants, who drift along with the tides without analyzing their problems and their opportunities. Small merchants still do about 60 per cent of the aggregate retail business.

Cement Profit in Past Year Lowered

North American Cement Co.'s 1928 net profit is equal to $3.51 a share on 51,500 shares of 7 per cent preferred, against $4.42 on preferred in 1927. Company wrote off from surplus during 1928 $295,295 for replacement of obsolete machinery, making unnecessary any reserve for federal taxes.

Pres. Samuel D. Warriner of Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. at annual meeting denied knowledge of any intention to sell company's coal properties in reply to question from a stockholder.

Atlantic Refining Earnings Increase

Pamphlet report of Atlantic Refining Co. and subsidiaries for year ended Dec. 31, 1928, shows consolidated net profit of $16,548,807 after interest, depreciation, depletion, federal taxes, etc., equivalent after 7 per cent preferred dividends to $7.72 a share (par $25) on 2,000,000 shares of common stock, against $2,315,715 or $1.83 a share on 500,000 common shares of $100 par value in 1927.

Total sales, Jan. 1, 1929, to date—New York, 179,680,500 shares; Boston, 3,296,985 shares.

No Warning by Reserve Tomorrow, Says Young

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—Roy A. Young, governor of the Federal Rerserve Board, denied today that the board would issue a statement Thursday emphasizing its directions to the Reserve banks to place a curb on loans to brokers.

His assertion was made after he had been asked regarding a rumor current in Wall Street during the day that a statement would be forthcoming from the board on restricting brokers' loans. Governor Young said:

"That is not so. There will be no public statement Thursday not is any contemplated at this time.

"There will be no special instructions on this subject to the banks. We have said all we could to the banks."

CALUMET-NEW CORNELIA PLAN OUT

Details are out today of the plan of consolidation of Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. and New Cornelia Copper Co. This calls for formation of new holding company with 1,000,000 shares of $20 par stock.

Stock of the new company will be exchanged on a share for share basis for the present Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. stock. For the 570,285 shares of New Cornelia stock outstanding in the hands of the public, 200,100 shares in the new company will be issued on the basis of one new share for each 2.85 shares of New Cornelia. There will, therefore, be 842,857 shares of the new company outstanding.

Notice to shareholders of Calumet & Arizona and New Cornelia says in part:

"New Cornelia Copper Co. was financed by Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. and under its management was developed from a prospect to its present profitable position. Largely as a result of such financing, Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. now owns more than two-thirds of the outstanding stock of New Cornelia Copper Co.

"Operating as two corporations, the business and affairs of the two companies must be carried on independently. This necessitates the maintenance of two complete organizations, a detailed distribution and accounting of joint undertakings, and a careful segregation and separate handling of the product of the two companies, all of which results in a duplication of work and cost along many lines.

"At the New Cornelia Copper Co. meeting, the stock owned by Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. will be voted for the adoption of the agreement of consolidation only in the event that a majority of the other stock represented at the meeting is voted in favor of such adoption."

GOODWIN SHOWS FAULTS IN AUTO INSURANCE LAW

By FRANK A. GOODWIN
(Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles and author of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American Automobile Insurance Bill.)

The greatest fault attached to the present compulsory law is the freedom given to crooked claimants, lawyers and doctors to impose upon insurance companies, with the resultant loss of millions of dollars to the car owners of the State.

The accompanying table shows the tremendous increase in reported injuries since the compulsory law went into effect in 1927. It shows especially the increase among occupants of cars, from which group come most of the fake claims.

A careful study of this table shows that fatal accidents have held about stationary during the past five years, being in fact higher before compulsory insurance than since. It will be noticed that there were more than twice as many pedestrians killed than occupants of automobiles, and this ratio held true in 1927 and 1928 under the compulsory insurance law. All fatals are required by law to be investigated and there can be no fake claims.

WALKERS LEAD AGAIN

Now let us look at the figures for non-fatal injuries. It will be noticed that before compulsory insurance there were more pedestrians injured than occupants, and the ratio ran about 14 to 10.

In 1927, however, the first year under compulsory insurance, the figures for occupants jumped almost to those of pedestrians, and in 1928, we have the extraordinary increase of almost 9000 for occupants and the total 23,077 was 5,659 higher than pedestrians.

In 1925 and 1926, with fatals not far apart, we find the injuries run even at about 25,500, while in 1927 and 1928 with fatals less we find the injuries reported jumped about 16,000. That is not all.

In 1927, when 31,721 injuries were reported to the registry insurance companies report that 48,000 made claims against them for injuries. In 1928, when all the statistics are in, the same situation will show. This is vitally important when we find in the reports of the insurance companies that in 1927 they paid $6,000,000 for settlement of 34,000 cases and set up as a reserve $5,500,000 to pay the other 14,000 claims.

COMPANIES POWERLESS

How any thinking person or newspaper can study these statistics and be willing to let the car owners of this State continue to be the victims of insurance companies, lawyers and doctors is beyond me.

The companies, to a certain extent, are helpless because they are unable to make immediate investigations. Many claims are not made to them until weeks or months after the accidents happen, and by the time their claim agents get around, the case is iron-clad against them. They decide in most of these cases it is cheaper in the end to settle than take a chance on a jury trial.

It was admitted by Mr. Downs at the hearing that all of the 67 companies employ about 700 claim agents which means that each man with 48,000 cases investigates only an average of 70 cases per year.

Investigators in the Registry Department handle on an average close to 300 cases every year. This shows what a tremendous load car owners are carrying on this item alone. Not only that, but if the registry were investigating we should get immediate action and fake claims would be a thing of the past.

Edison Buys From American Woolen

Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston has entered into an agreement with the American Woolen Co. to purchase, subject to the approval of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities and the stockholders of teh respective companies, the electric business in the towns of Maynard and Acton. It will be months before the Edison company will be prepared to furnish the service from its own supply.

Figures Tell Graphic Tale of Auto Accidents

The tremendous increase in reported injuries under the present compulsory auto insurance law is shown in the subjoined table.

Goodwin Bill Given To Legislature

The Boston Evening American's petition to the Massachusetts Legislature calling upon that body to pass the bill filed by Frank A. Goodwin and this newspaper to establish a State fund to provide compulsory insurance at cost to the motorists of this State will be presented to the joint legislative committee on insurance today.

The petition, signed by more than 18,000, will be turned over to Senator Hale, chairman of the committee, by Goodwin. The presentation will take place in Gardner auditorium shortly after 10 a. m. during the course of the hearing on the bill of Representative Edgar Power of Winthrop, the last of the bills relating to compulsory insurance, to be heard.

In addition to presenting the Boston Evening American petition, Goodwin will vigorously oppose the Power bill, which he says was drawn by the insurance interests of this State and turned over to Representative Power for filing. The Power bill would wipe out automobile compulsory insurance in this State.

SAFETY MEASURE

It is in effect the same as the present Connecticut law, under which, during its two years of operation, fatal accidents have increased 35 per cent. During the same period, under compulsory insurance in Massachusetts, fatal accidents have increased only one and one-half per cent. Under the Power bill a motorist would not become financially responsible until after he had killed or maimed a person.

"It would be a calamity to repeal the compulsory insurance law in Massachusetts," said Goodwin. "It has not only resulted in nearly 100 per cent financial responsibility of motorists but has also acted as a safety measure, although not primarily passed as such.

AIDS COMPANIES

"The Power bill would wipe out this financial responsibility and take us back where we were before the compulsory insurance law was passed. Compulsory insurance is a good thing and I am confident that every good citizen, including motorists, feel that way. The main evil to correct is its excessive cost and that can be done by passage of the Goodwin-American bill for a State fund to supply this service at cost.

"The insurance interests are behind the Power bill and will do their utmost to put it across. They do not want to be regulated in this State or any other. They also want to pick their own risks instead of being forced to insure all car owners as at present. The Power will be a selfish attempt of the insurance interests to do what they like in Massachusetts."

MAIL YOUR PETITIONS

Persons who have been circulating petitions requesting the Massachusetts Legislature to pass the Goodwin-American compulsory insurance bill are asked to mail them to the Boston Evening American AT ONCE for presentation to the Legislature. Don't delay. Mail them NOW.

STEEL'S PLAN AWAITS ACTION BY HOLDERS

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—A plan to add $596,679,000 to the capital stock of the United States Steel Corporation and wipe out its bonded debt today awaited ratification of the stockholders.

Myron C. Taylor, chief financial officer of the corporation, announced the general outline of the plan after it had been approved at a meeting of the board of directors yesterday. Details of the program, the amount to be sold, subscription price and ratio to present holdings are to be fixed later.

The plan calls for an increase of the common stock, par value $100, from 7,533,210 to 12,500,000 shares.

Regarding the plan to retire outstanding bonds of the corporation, a statement issued said:

"Funds received from the sale to stockholders of the shares of common stocks thus to be offered, together with such portion as the directors may then decide upon employing of the cash resources of the corporation in hand representing surplus and other reserves, will be employed to redeem [illegible] purchase and to call for retirement all or part of the bonds of [illegible] United States Steel Corporation as the directors may elect, of which there were outstanding December 31, 1928, $134,830,000 of 50-year 5 per cent gold bonds of 1951 and $136,555,000 of 60-year 5 per cent bonds of 1963."

The 50-year bonds are to be retired at 125 and the 60-year issue at 110.

It is estimated the retirement of bonds will reduce fixed charges $27,247,350, or more than enough to pay dividends on the additional common stock at the present rate.

At the meeting April 30, stockholders also will be asked to approve a revision in the corporation's employes' stock subscription plan to give directors the option of issuing stock to be offered employes or buying it in the open market.

James A. Farrell, president, said the operations of the Steel Corporation were near plant capacity and that the outlook [illegible] the industry for the next few months was promising.

Common Dividend Renewed on Transit

Twin City Rapid Transit Co. resumed dividends on common stock by declaration of quarterly dividend of $1, payable April 1. Last previous dividend was $1.25, paid July 2, 1928.

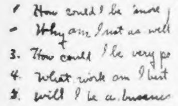
Popularity Missed by Thinking of 'It'

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

DEAR MISS RICE: Some of the things I would like to know are: How could I be more popular? Why am I not as well liked as my friends? How could I be very popular with ladies? What work am I best suited for? Will I be a business success? Yours truly K. A. M., Brookline.



1 How could I be more
2 Why am I not as well
3. How could I be very po
4. What work am I best
5. will I be a business

I think we can lump the first three questions, K. A. M., and answer them by one reply:

People who think about being popular seldom are.

SELFISH REASONS

Just stop and think. Why do you want to be popular? Not for the benefit of people with whom you are popular, surely. For yourself, then, for your own selfish comfort, so that your pride may be soothed and your amour propre catered to. Also, of course (which is one of the deep reasons that people want to be popular), because you want friendship.

These are purely selfish reasons and the world, which is collectively as shrewd as it is individually dumb, estimates this and gives its popular acclaim to the people who really care little for it. In other words, K. A. M., to win the world you have to seem to be sweetly independent of it. You can't "put on" that independence, either. The world is quick to resent that, too. Just be so interested in so many things that you are happy with those interests and all your world, including "the ladies," will come flocking to your door.

You are really a practical, sensible, sincere and kindly person with the kind of business ability that ought to make a fine merchant of you. Try to get into a good firm and learn the business from the ground up. In time you will be an excellent executive.

HOW TO DO IT

It is in the rhythm with which writing is done that we may almost instantly perceive the way in which people think. No greater contrast could exist than that of this illustration.

He has a and we get to gether althou
think he doesn

The pen flows on, softly, evenly, gently, here. The spaces between the words are wide, showing clear thought. The rounded capital I expresses serenity of mood, the instinct to do well with practical things and the ability to be at peace with the world. The mind works quietly and serenely. The distinction between this writing and that of the angular and jerky rhythm is that the disposition is so different that the mental operations are thereby affected.

NOTE. Send sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice, noted graphologist, for analysis. Write your name and complete address on unruled paper, in ink or pencil. To cover clerical costs enclose 10c in silver or stamps. Also enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The individual analysis will be returned to you within a period of one or two weeks. Letters will not be published if sender so requests. Miss Rice has a number of letters which she cannot answer because of wrong or inadequate addresses.

BOOZE FLOODS CAPITAL FOR INAUGURAL

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Jean Carsteyn, beautiful young adventurer and journalist, contracts to cross the African deserts from Algiers to Sudan, the first to attempt this hazardous 5,000-mile journey. Before leaving London she encounters a sun-darkened tall stranger, whose curious yellow eyes haunt and frighten her. She arrives at Algiers, thankful to have escaped the persistent stranger. Jean continues to Oran and there accepts lodgings at a mysterious house—to find herself a prisoner.

Jim Verner, a youthful Englishman on government service, disguised as a wealthy Pasha, aids Jean to escape. They become fast friends. Jean, anxious to be off on her long journey, leaves for Figuig, the starting-point. Arriving there, she learns that her caravan has been taken by Tranby Hillsen, noted explorer and man of mystery. Not to be thwarted in her purpose, Jean stains her skin, and disguised as a native dancing girl, joins a merchant caravan bound for Thibesti. Far out in the desert the caravan halts near that of Hillson. Jean, curious to see Hillson, asks Hauwa, a native girl, to accompany her and together they creep to Hillson's tent. Jean is horrified to learn that Hillson is none other than her nemesis—The Man With the Yellow Eyes! Several days later, while the two girls are visiting a small town, their caravan departs without them. Stranded, they return to the town and there, to Jean's great joy, they encounter Verner, disguised as a holy dervish. Verner warns Jean that he is not free to aid her, but contrives to send them onward with a small merchant caravan.

Far in the desert the caravan is attacked by raiders. Jean and Hauwa are carried to Jof to be sold at slaves.

CHAPTER 3

WHITE to the lips Jean stared at the motley throng. A parchment skinned Sayed was bidding for her against the man with the mutilated hand and the Bedouin won. The purchaser ordered the two girls to follow him.

They were escorted to the top floor of a house guarded by high parapets and left behind a closed door.

After sunset a servitor appeared and motioned Jean to follow; she soon found herself in a room soft with rugs. An Arab turned to meet her, but when his burnous was pushed back she recognized with horror the yellow eyes of the only man she feared.

"Miss Carsteyn," he said, "we meet in strange places—I assure you my dear child you haven't the faintest idea how to kiss."

He bounded across the rugs and finally caught her. Under her barracan her fingers closed around the hilt of her knife, but the yellow eyes were hypnotic. They deprived her of all action.

He stood over her for a moment, enjoying her discomfiture. Then he dragged her to him, bending her head backwards, so that her lips, gasping for breath, were forced apart. His own descended on them.

Released from the dominion of the cruel, light eyes, Jean made a movement of recoil, but the hand on her throat tightened and, between his kisses, Hillson murmured, "It would be as well to remember that you are not only my prisoner but my slave." With a sob, she dragged at her knife!

Hillson stopped kissing her and looked deep into her eyes. "When I have wakened you, you will be beautiful," he said and lifted her suddenly in his arms. With a final wrench, she freed the dagger and struck!

It was a clumsy blow and, instead of entering his chest, it slipped off something metal and ripped his arm to the bone.

After the wound had been dressed and they were again alone he remarked casually:

"A bad miss, eh? Women are always so ineffective with any kind of weapon."

Sent back to Hauwa Jean began to plan an escape. There was only one who could save her and that was the Veiled Prophet himself.

Dared she claim his protection? Could she reach him?

"Hauwa, where exactly is the Prophet's underground city?"

The Berber's explanation was vague, but she assured her companion that all nomads

Social Red Tape Is Waiting New First Lady of Land

(This is the fifth of a series on Mrs. Hoover, New First Lady)

By CORINNE RICH

Washington, Feb. 27—Accustomed as she is to the amenities becoming the wife of a high public servant, Mrs. Hoover on entering the White House will immediately be bound up in the country's greatest ball of social red tape.

One calls this "the land of the free," but once she becomes the mistress of the executive mansion, nobody is less free in the matter of social contracts than the first lady of the land. Everything she does is done according to "precedent." It's tradition for this and tradition for that.

Thomas Jefferson it was who, wanting to be thoroughly democratic, instituted a social system of "willy-nilly," which abolished precedent and got its originator into all sorts of embarrassing predicaments as a consequence.

Important ladies thought he had snubbed them and in one case, this lack of "form" almost brought on international complications. So after the third President, order was established and red tape has ruled ever since. Only in that way can governments easily meet one another socially.

Mrs. Hoover will have several experts on precedent on whom she can rely, should she ever be in doubt as to what to do and when. First of all, she has "Ike" Hoover, chief usher of the White House and major-domo of social affairs of state. So competent and tactful is this Mr. Hoover that Mrs. Coolidge has called him "absolutely indispensable."

He knows all the niceties of procedure. For instance, a new ambassador comes to the White House to present his credentials to the President. Mr. Hoover sees that it is done properly.

The ambassador arrives in a presidential automobile. He is accompanied by a representative of the State Department and by one of the President's senior aides. He is met at the front door by the President's other senior aide and a squad of junior aides, and is escorted into the green room.

Then Mr. Hoover goes upstairs to tell the President that the ambassador is there. The President comes downstairs and goes into the blue room to await his visitor. The ambassador, attended by all the aides, steps from the green room into the blue room and bows to the President. The President returns the bow.

The ambassador reads a little speech and hands his credentials to the President. The President reads a little speech. They shake hands and then talk about this and that and the meeting is over.

So complicated has this social red tape become that just recently the State Department has established a bureau of social relations to take care of all problems involving intricacies and ticklish precedence.

BOOTLEGS PLAN FOR HARVEST

Washington, Feb. 27 (INS)—Bootleggers were on the run in Washington today.

They were running in several directions, chiefly in and out of the District of Columbia, bringing in rye, gin and alcohol and going out after additional supplies that the unofficial and "undercover" celebration of the advent of Herbert Hoover's administration may not be wanting in gayety.

Some of the bootleggers were running from the police and federal enforcement officers, who have been unusually active in the last week in an effort to dry up the capital for the inauguration.

The bootleggers insisted that there would be an adequate stock on hand for the festivities, in spite of a demand that promises to tax the efficiency of the distribution system.

For regular customers there will be no advance in prices on the part of the "respectable and reliable" vendors of booze.

For the visitors prices will go high. An out-of-towner probably will be asked $10 to $12 for a quart of very young Maryland rye, $5 to $8 for gin and $10 to $18 for "genuine" smuggled Scotch.

That's about twice the normal prices to regular customers.

Federal forces, under Administrator John F. J. Herbert of Baltimore, were co-operating with the District of Columbia police in efforts to prevent a big inflow of liquor.

They had a blockade around the capital, guarding roads and waterways, over which came a stream of liquor ladened cars and boats. They said the drive to suppress liquor smuggling into the district had been fairly successful.

Pre-inauguration activities of the police already have resulted in the arrest of a number of bootleggers and confiscation of a considerable volume of liquor.

Mother of Thirteen Dies of Heart Attack

Mrs. Bridget Ryan, 66, and mother of 13 sons and daughters, died at the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital. Death was due to heart failure following an operation. Her home was in Newton Lower Falls.

Mrs. Ryan was the proud mother of four boys who served in the World War—Tom, who served with the French Army and received the Croixe de Guerre, Major Patrick Ryan of Waltham, James of Elizabethtown, Penn., and George of Newton Lower Falls. Her other sons and daughters are John E. of Brighton; Margaret, Anne and Frederick of Newton Lower Falls; Mrs. F. J. Nagle of Brockton; Mrs. Paul Mullen and Mrs. O. G. Kelley of Newton Center; and Mrs. John J. McDonough of Waltham.

Funeral services will be held Friday from St. John's Church in Newton Lower Falls and interment will be in Waltham.

Stubborn Bridge Ties Up 'L' Traffic

Hundreds of persons bound for work by trolley were delayed for three-quarters of an hour today when mechanism of the L st., South Boston, bridge over Reserve channel broke down while it was being closed and refused to lock.

A trolley pole was ripped off of one car which started over the bridge, with the result that trolley traffic was held up, with a shuttle service being run from South Boston. Passengers were forced to walk across the bridge and board other cars on the city side. Automobile traffic was not interrupted.

Eleanor Early of Wellesley Better

Miss Eleanor Early of Wellesley Hills is convalescing at Newton Hospital following an operation for appendicitis. Her first novel is soon to be published.

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION:

Do you favor the proposed $4,250,000 Charles River Basin improvement plan as set forth in the Harriman Bill?

MURIEL RADCLIFFE, 23 Broadway, Beverly, at home—I certainly do. This would not only improve the surroundings of the Charles River Basin, but would give Boston what it most needs—a good traffic artery. This would enable a motorist to reach the shopping and business centers of the city in less than half the time it now takes. Boston's merchants should push this bill strongly.

MRS. WILLIAM R. MOELLER, 9 Cypress st., Norwood, housewife—Yes, this improvement plan would be a very good thing. Because of the narrow and crooked streets in Boston traffic has become a big problem. Besides helping to solve this problem, a road of this sort would attract more people to visit the business and pleasure centers of Boston.

* * *

GEORGE VELOUDIS, 59 Sumner st., Boston, manager—I would favor any plan that would enable a motorist to get in and out of Boston faster than at the present time. A loop road like this would also improve and make more valuable any property along its route. It would put Boston on a par with any of the larger cities of the country.

* * *

JOSEPH MILIACI, 30 Herrick st., Brighton, barber—Surely a bill like this should be passed. Traffic conditions in Boston are terrible and they must be improved if this city continues on its present prosperity. A beach built along this road in the Charles river basin would give the children, who in the past could not afford to go to a beach, a chance to get a little healthful fresh air and play.

* * *

WILLIAM H. HAYNES, 455 Audubon rd., Boston, tailor—The plan set forth by the Harriman Bill seems to me to be a good idea. This would certainly be a big improvement to Boston and would make entrance and exit to the industrial centers of the city much easier. This may cost a great deal of money but it would certainly better the traffic system.

Burglars Get $310 in Revere House

While Mr. and Mrs. Sebastiano Micciull were asleep in their apartment at 19 Tapley st., Revere, burglars entered the house and looted three boxes early today, taking $280 in currency and $30 in gold.

A gold watch and fob, other gold pieces and several other cash boxes were overlooked.

Backs Auto in Open Lift; Falls to Death

Newark, N. J., Feb. 27 (AP)—Samuel Manuel, 65 years old today backed his automobile into an open elevator shaft in the Meadowbrook Garage on Halsey st., forgetting that the lift was not there. The car fell two stories, overturning and pinning him beneath. He was killed instantly.

GRAFT HINT IN USE OF B.U. FUNDS

Hints of "graft" and "suspicious management" of funds by student committees in the handling of social and business affairs at Boston University are charged in the weekly issue of the B. U. News, undergraduate newspaper.

The article proposes the appointment of an auditing committee to supervise the management of funds by the various committees.

Thousands of dollars are expended each year by the students in charge of such affairs as the junior prom, class dances, college yearbooks and the like. In the past a very lax supervision has been held over the expenditure of funds for these affairs, according to the editorial.

The article deplores the fact that some B. U. students are trying to "make their living from the result of the labor of the others." The editorial continues:

"Everyone is entitled to know where his money goes, and the student auditors should make public the result of their research.

"Too long has there been a taint of graft or at least the suspicion of unwise management in certain of B. U.'s students' activities. Although there are plenty of opportunities for 'commissions' on contracts that are not evident on carefully kept books, the temptation to mismanage would be greatly diminished if vigilant accountants followed all accounts diligently."

Committees in charge of the dances and business ventures at the university are usually appointed by the student council or by the class presidents.

IT'S 'I WIN!' IN OIL CONTEST

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—Col. Robert W. Stewart today was claiming support of the majority of stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, while the Rockefeller faction, which seeks to remove him from the chairmanship of the company, laid claim to a majority of the votes.

"The progress of the fight is satisfactory. I have already received the support of a majority of the stockholders—in fact, a large majority. Our total of votes is increasing each day."

Thomas W. Debevoise, representing the Rockefeller interests, said:

"I can't understand what Col Stewart means when he says he has a majority unless he means a majority of the number of stockholders.

"We are certain of a large majority of votes and our victory is a foregone conclusion."

Women Not 'Blind Bargain Hunters'

Women are not "blind bargain hunters" but are discriminating buyers of properly advertised store goods, Miss Marion Frances Brown, advertising manager of the R. H. Stearns Company, told members of the Advertising Club of Boston at the Hotel Bellevue.

"The merchant who believes that it is only cut prices that sell's cck will deal with crowds rather than with customers," the speaker continued. "He will weigh volume but not profits. Furthermore, he will lose out on the greatest of all objectives, service. The store that is successful today is the store that tells a woman about fashion, about the things that she wears, about the care of her children, and about the upkeep of her home."

Keene Police Chief, Chelsea Native, Dies

Keene, N. H., Feb. 27 (AP)—William Hunt Philbrick, 68, chief of police of this city, died at his home here today. Philbrick joined the force in 1896 as city marshal. He was vice-president of the Police Chiefs' Association of New Hampshire and of the Association of New England Police Chiefs. The chief was born in Chelsea, Mass., and came here in 1885. His widow, a son, a daughter and a sister in Chelsea survive. Philbrick was a Mason and an Elk and a member of the Monadnock Club.

4 STABBED BY MADMAN IN SUBWAY

New York, Feb 27 (AP)—A mad man who fell upon the rush-hour crowds in Times sq. subway station with a knife, slashing four persons was under restraint in a hospital today.

The station was packed with a mass of humanity moving slowly toward homeward bound trains when the man, who stood six feet two inches, and built in proportion suddenly drew a long knife and began to lay about him, meanwhile shouting unintelligible gibberish.

Before they could escape Leon Lavay, 21; Nathan Friedman, 45; Paul M. Thate, 35, and Richard Enthrup, 37, had been cut.

The crowd, thrown into a panic, fought toward exits, leaving the maniac standing in the center of a wide space he had cleared with his brandished knife.

A traffic policeman, the first to reach the scene, was unable to subdue the man and it was not until a squad of reserves rushed him with nightsticks that he was beaten into submission.

ATTACKER ROUTED BY WOMAN

Wayland in a lonely spot while on her way home early today, Mrs. Florence Thomas, 40, of Park ave, Revere, fought off her assailant and frightened him to flight with her screams, after he had seized her and thrown her to the ground.

The attempted attack occurred on Dale st., Revere, after Mrs. Thomas had left a Woodlawn car at the Chelsea-Revere-Everett line and started walking home.

The attacker, a youth of about 24, six feet tall, weighing 165 to 170 pounds and wearing a green slicker and light grey cap, stepped from behind a tree.

After fighting him off, Mrs. Thomas walked to the nearest house where she collapsed. Her husband, Arthur A. Thomas, was notified and he reported to the police of the three cities. A suspect was picked up by the Everett police but Mrs. Thomas could not identify him as her assailant.

JUNIOR LEAGUERS ARE MODELS IN FASHION FETE TO AID CHARITY

Folk Handicraft Guild to Benefit by Affair Held at Home of Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole

A CHARMING GROUP OF MODELS, chiefly volunteers from the Junior League, displayed a variety of attractive costumes, designed and embroidered by the Folk Handicrafts Guild, at the fashion fete which was held at the home of Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole in Commonwealth ave. Mrs. Frank G. Allen and Mrs. Frances V. Crane, wife and daughter of Governor Allen, were the guests of honor. Both Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Crane are greatly interested in the work of the Guild, an enterprise begun 20 years ago by a small group of Italian women who wished to embroider.

AMONG THE GIRLS ACTING as models were Alison Towle, who wore a cranberry-colored crepe sports dress; Dorothea Ware was in a vivid blue sports dress; Gertrude Marean, in an afternoon gown of beige organdie; Justine Prince, in a striking black and white skating costume; Elizabeth Eustis, in a white tennis dress embroidered in red; Carolyn Read, in a sports dress very similar to Miss Towle's, and Betty Emery, in a smart, tan street dress.

THE HASTY PUDDING CLUB at Harvard is busily engaged in getting out a list of patronesses for their annual show, which they have just announced will take place in Cambridge on April 3, 4 and 5 before being put on in New York, April 8. The production this year is "Fireman, Save My Child," a satire on the Cambridge of 1750. There will be a cast of more than 25.

VERY ACTIVE IN SOCIAL AFfairs of all sorts are Helen and Charlotte Moseley, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley of 144 Beacon st. At their home this afternoon a meeting of the Vincent Club, of which Helen Moseley is vice-president, is being held to make the final arrangements for the club's annual production this spring. Charlotte Moseley is taking charge of the tickets for the Povla Frijsh concert at Jordan Hall, March 13, for the benefit of the South Boston Neighborhood House. Miss Mary Keyes, whose engagement to Kenneth Mariner was announced last week, is also on the committee which includes Miss Helen Jackson, Miss Lucy Aspinwall, Mrs. Edward H. Warren and many others.

MISS CAROLYN READ
Debutante member of the Junior League was one of the models in the fashion fete at the home of Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole on Commonwealth ave. (Staff Photo).

MRS. LANGDON WARNER, Mrs. Josiah Wheelwright and Mrs. Charles Peabody were among the hostesses at the concert given by the Harvard Glee Club at Sanders Theater last evening. These women are the nucleus of a group which is well known for its interest in Boston's musical affairs.

THE EXHIBITION OF WATER colors which opened at the Art Museum with a private view is made up largely of paintings loaned for the occasion by prominent Bostonians. Mr. Henry F. Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Mrs. Harold Peabody, Mrs. George Putnam, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mrs. Roger Warner, Mr. Edwin S. Webster, Mr. John Briggs Potter, Mr. William T. Aldrich and Mr. W. G. Russell Allen are among those who have loaned paintings from their private collections.

MUCH INTEREST HAS BEEN shown in the canvasses exhibited by one of Boston's foremost artists, Mrs. Q. A. Shaw McKean of Commonwealth ave. and Pride's Crossing, at the Boston Society of Independent Artists Galleries at 40 Joy st. Mrs. McKean, who paints under her maiden name of Margaret Sargent, has had several one-man exhibitions in New York. One of her exhibits, a group of children at a birthday party, has been purchased by her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton of 13 Commonwealth ave. Another has been sold to Mr. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago, well known painter and collector.

OTHER TALENTED BOSTON women exhibiting at this gallery are Mrs. Thomas Motley, who has two flower studies in water color; Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, who has also two flower pieces; Miss Mabel Sturgis, Mrs. Walter H. Kilham, who is president of the Society of Independent Artists, and her daughter, Aline Kilham, who has contributed a very charming pastel of her mother.

FINE PROGRAM BY SYMPHONY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra gave its second Tuesday afternoon concert at Symphony Hall with a program that everyone would agree was classic. First came Handel's Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra in B minor—Handel, of whose slow movements the characterization "heavenly" is not mere gush.

A beautiful performance of this work was followed by the familiar "Surprise" symphony of Haydn. As in the case of the Concerto, there was here nothing to disturb the placidity of the concert-goer who shuns dissonance as he does the scraping of silverware. And the final number, Brahms' second symphony in D major, could not offend on this score, accustomed as the ear is nowadays to most terrifying noises doing duty as music.

Even those who find much of Brahms' music dull, can scarcely lay the charge against this symphony, which was a happy choice of Mr. Koussevitzky. He and the orchestra gave an admirable and revealing rendering, which was shorn of "tradition" but substituted instead, the flesh-and-blood vitalization of a composer who still has much to say "50 years after."

The audience, which filled the hall, applauded at length, especially after the final symphony, when Mr. Koussevitzky brought the orchestra players to their feet to share the tribute.

SIMMONS GIRL IS MARRIED

Of interest to the younger set of Boston was the marriage of Miss Gladys Koch, of Brookline, to Berthold Summerfield Stern, of Chestnut Hill, at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

Miss Koch, Simmons '29, is remembered by her athletic and social activities while at college. Stern is a Dartmouth man, a member of the Dartmouth Chapter of Pi Lambda Phi fraternity, and president of the Pi Lambda Phi Club of Boston.

The maid of honor was Miss Janet Wolfson of Brookline, and the best man was Bernard L. Levison. Ushers were Major L. Stern, Ervin Baker, Bernard D. Phillips, Spencer R. Koch, Jess M. Stern, Matty Brown and Herbert Koch.

After a honeymoon trip in Florida, the couple will reside in Brookline.

Stern is associated with his father in business in Boston.

Indian Woes Laid by Chief to Liquor

Poisonous bootleg liquor, the white man's greatest crime against the Indian, is speeding the vanishing race on its final sunset trail in degradation and misery, asserted Chief Ousa Mekin (Yellow Feather), last survivor of the Massachusetts Wampanoags.

The chief, in native costume, was presented to the Dorchester Woman's Club by its president, Mrs. Henry W. Davis, on the program directed by the education chairman, Miss Mary Clarke. He is a self-educated Methodist minister, now "preaching clean living and right thinking" to the remnant of the Rhode Island Narragansetts. He was born on the old reservation near Fall River.

Mrs. Henry W. Davis

"The Red Man alone of all peoples of the earth did not turn the abundance of grapes, hops and corn in his land into intoxicating liquors and brews," he said.

"My ancestor, Chief Massasoit welcomed the Pilgrims to these shores, fed them when they were starving. After they lived in peace and harmony for 52 years, rum caused the first bitter suspicions and war when Benjamine Church offered it to my tribe, which was practically exterminated while in a drunken stupor.

MISERY COMES

"The white man is selling the Red Man liquor today, laughing at his love for the poisonous bootleg stuff. And with it go deeper and deeper degradation and misery.

"Today my people are the only race denied the blessings of this great free country. They are herded on barren reservations, thousands of them without the opportunity for elementary education, and many more thousands without the solace of the Word of God.

"Is it any wonder, if you put yourself in their places, that the Indians believe the world is crooked?

"It is my mission to make friends for my people; I am here to appeal to you women, who are America's only hope for safety, to help alleviate the utter misery of those denied what all others may enjoy under your Constitution.

"The great heart of this country goes out to the oppressed of every land, to the starving and needy afar, but this government utterly ignores its wards, the Red Men. Twenty-two thousand Indian children are denied an education.

HITS INJUSTICE

"Those few who have gained an education find industrial barriers that deny them opportunity; sent back to the reservation, they are parians among their own people for adopting the white man's ways. This is the great problem.

"My people need the lesson of 'work, save, and do for themselves'; the paternalism of this government means their extermination in another generation or two.

"I hope to see the indifference and hate of the Red Man turned into understanding and white hands outstretched to meet him. No people has ever felt injustice so keenly as the Red Man."

WINS PRIZE

Mrs. Arthur J. Crockett was the winner of the prize offered by the West Roxbury Woman's Club for the best song on "Why Worry?"

Her words were sung to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," under the leadership of Mrs. Mabel Barstow, State Federation song leader, at the meeting.

Dr. W. A. Bryan of the Worcester State Hospital told the club that most insanity is caused by too much self-centering, and for that reason club work is the greatest safety-valve in any community.

Mrs. Herman C. Petterson presided.

PLAY SECRETS

The new wrinkles in costuming plays on little money are sometimes achieved by dipping cheesecloth in water and letting it dry before draping, the Art and Literature conference learned from Mrs. Roy C. Baker, demonstrating that vital part of putting on club plays.

Glue spread on cambric, with glitter scattered on it makes lovely helmets, and new pans help achieve lighting effects that make flannel look like satin!

Many other practical points were brought out by Mrs. Earl Baker, Mrs. Elsie K. Chamberlain, C. Hassler Capron, and Mrs. A. B. Gerlach.

Mrs. Azel A. Packard and Mrs. Carl F. Schrader brought greetings from the State Federation, and Mrs. D. A. Harrington, president of the Cantabrigia Club, welcomed the 200 delegates to Cambridge.

Remember the FACTS about used car allowances

MOST new car sales now involve the trading-in of a buyer's used car. More and more people are asking: "Why should my used car seem to have several values? .... Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances differing materially? .... Does the largest allowance offered mean the best deal for me?"

Here are basic facts:

1 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
3 The largest trade-in allowance which is offered on your used car is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
5 Judge the merits of each new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in the allowances offered on your used car.

WHEN you trade-in your present car, remember that you are first of all making a purchase and not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.

STRIBLING HAS FEW BACKERS IN SOUTH

By JACK CONWAY

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 27—Jack Sharkey will rule a 2-to-1 favorite over Young Stribling by post time in their 10-round battle here tonight.

CROWD MAINLY NORTHERN

The bulk of the crowd [illegible] will witness the bout will be [illegible] the North.

The South is behind Stribling [illegible] it lacks the cash. Even [illegible] will not be very well [illegible] at the ringside tonight. The folks back in Stribling [illegible] will [illegible] radio.

William F. Carey, vice-president of Madison Square Garden corporation, announced today that the show will draw between $350,000 and $400,000. This assures its financial success.

Lou Magnolia, one of New York's licensed referees, will be the third man in the ring when Sharkey and Stribling whirl into action shortly after 10 o'clock tonight. Magnolia is a capable official and has worked in bouts in New York in which both Sharkey and Stribling have been the principals.

RULES EXPLAINED

Magnolia has already instructed Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, and Pa Stribling, Stribling's manager, as to the rules which will govern the contest.

The most important rule is that which deals with a knockdown. In the event of a knockdown, the boxer scoring the knockdown will retire to the most distant corner from the boxer on the canvas.

The knockdown time keeper will start his count as the boxer hits the canvas. The referee shall also count.

At the count of four, the referee shall look to see if the boxer scoring the knockdown is in the most distant corner. If he isn't, the count shall be suspended until he gets into the corner. It shall then be resumed at the count of five.

If the boxer scoring the knockdown leaves the most distant corner before his opponent has regained his feet or been counted out, the referee shall suspend his count until he returns.

The idea of this rule is to give the boxer on the canvas the fullest amount of protection.

REF IN FULL CHARGE

Referee Magnolia shall [illegible] complete charge of the question of a foul. His ruling will be final. He will have the right to disqualify a boxer who fouls after repeated warnings even though he has not injured his opponent.

The so-called pickers are stringing along with Sharkey. They figure he is too big and strong for Stribling. They come back to the old adage about a good little man not being able to defeat a good big man.

Sharkey and Stribling have both promised Dempsey to open up and make a fight out of it. They are anxious to give the cash customers a run for their money and also to

GETS BEST CHANCE FOR GLORY

Stribling faces one of the hardest fights of his long ring career tonight. Sharkey is a strong battler. Strib won't be able to clinch to any great extent. Bill says he will make a real fight of it.

Stribling Says:

"If Sharkey meets me toe to toe, I intend making the pace faster than he ever has travelled.

"A knockout victory over Sharkey is the only thing that will satisfy me."

Young Stribling has the cheers of the south when he goes into the ring to battle Jack Sharkey, but the youthful Georgian has little support from his fellow Southerners. There has been practically no chance for Sharkey fans to bet on their favorite as there practically is no Stribling money to be found. Strib, though, is in the best shape of his career. The report of an "injured rib" looks very much like a mere potential abibi in case Bill loses the fight. Strib has a lot of speed. And he has a remarkable amount of ring experience. So it is quite possible that he will win tonight, even though he is the underdog in the betting.

The Georgia youth has been fighting [illegible] for many [illegible] and naturally [illegible] of the [illegible] has [illegible] He is a good [illegible] at [illegible] if he can stand [illegible] at full [illegible] to do.

STRIBLING CALM

The Stribling camp is as cool as a cucumber and will be that way all through the [illegible] A fight is just a fight to him. Sharkey, more nervous and temperamental, has been schooled to [illegible] his business in calculating fashion and his workouts [illegible] that he has learned his lesson.

Jack admires Al Lacey who has been training him and, consequently, is willing to take any and all advice from him. Poor advice and refusal to heed orders have been responsible for most of his mistakes. Things will be hard [illegible] this evening, you may bank on that.

The Stribling family is planning a drive to the world championship and the Sharkey crowd the same. So there'll be 200 per cent confidence in Mister Carey's new ring.

The money boys are offering 7 to 5 on Sharkey, but finding few takers. The [illegible] South is for Stribling but not financially.

SHARKEY LIKES COMPANY

Sharkey has been [illegible] in the hotel lobby [illegible] days. At [illegible]

"I've enjoyed training for this fight and I haven't felt like that since I was a kid just beginning to box. I'm going to keep in there until all this elimination stuff is out of the way and I have my shot at the [illegible] I'll take a real [illegible]

Mister Sharkey was not boasting [illegible] from a deep sense of [illegible] the result of perfect [illegible]

BOYS PARK IN PARK

The boys are sleeping [illegible] the park benches here. Some of them will take the benches. All the [illegible] are present.

[illegible] ticket [illegible] the gate will [illegible] $350,000. And every [illegible]

Young William Stribling, the hero of several hundred battles, is the most unconcerned chap in the [illegible] village.

"I don't like to talk," [illegible] told us, with a big [illegible] I'm fit to go 10 to 20 rounds. I've never been out of shape and a couple of days of rest have put me right where I want to be."

Then he played with the [illegible] and apparently forgot that the [illegible] that may point him to the world's championship was just around the corner.

WINNER GETS BIG BOUT

For it seems to most observers that the two best heavyweights of the present crop are to battle for the glory [illegible] Miami [illegible] New York [illegible] Dempsey [illegible]

PURJE FOR WIDE FOR NURMI

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—It all sounds very complicated but Eino Purje has decided [illegible] Edvin Wide, who was [illegible] for Paavo Nurmi at the New York County American Legion [illegible] field meet at the 102d Engineers Armory here tonight.

All this switching of foreign talent came about through the determination of legion officials to have some of the well-known foreign flavor for their meet.

Nurmi was to have run in a special four-mile race, but the plan [illegible] by failing [illegible] national A. A. U. [illegible] last Saturday night.

Now [illegible] indefinite suspension and possibly will remain so even after the registration committee of the Metropolitan Association, A. A. U. meets this afternoon to [illegible] case.

Even if he is reinstated Paavo [illegible] he will not run until he has recovered from a cold which prevents him from giving his best efforts.

With Nurmi out of the picture, the legion got Wide [illegible] a mile and a half [illegible] but the Swedish schoolmaster strained his ankle at Elizabeth, N. J., Monday night and is out of competition for several days at least.

Purje now has agreed to come to the rescue. He will try to break Wide's world record for the mile and a half set at 6.37 4-5 by the Swede in 1927.

FINE CATCHING SQUAD AT B. C.

Boston College['s] catching squad, although without a single veteran, [illegible] one of the strongest [illegible] on the [illegible] baseball [illegible]

[illegible] Coach [illegible] Duffy [illegible] baseball [illegible] Bob Smith, George Colbert and Eddie [illegible] And there's another [illegible] Brandon McNally, [illegible] as though he was born in a baseball [illegible]

Bob Smith, catcher at Norwood [illegible] and Huntington School, is now a senior at Boston College. Due to the presence of Fred McMenimen and Tom O'Brien, Smith spent most of his past three seasons on the bench.

Smith, however, is noted as a fine catcher and caused quite a sensation in the Cape league last summer by his batting. Coach Duffy used him a bit in the outfield because of his ability with the willow.

Bob should win the varsity job this season but he's got to work hard. Smith was one of the first boys to report at the Armory and is intent of settling the position in short order.

George Colbert did the backstopping for the frosh last spring. He was one of the heaviest hitters on the squad and did a first class job behind the plate. Colbert prepared at Dean Academy. He was a quarterback on the grid squad last fall.

Brooklyn Pitchers in Stiff Session

[illegible] Fla., Feb. 27 (AP)—The [illegible] struggle between the pitchers and the batters already has begun as far as the Brooklyn Robins are concerned.

Some of the more ambitious athletes in Wilbert Robinson's flock [illegible] with offerings of the eight pitchers in the camp with so much vigor during their second workout yesterday that the harassed hurlers tried to put something on the ball.

Max Carey, veteran outfielder, acting manager until Robbie arrives, severely rebuked those fingers who so far forgot themselves. "Save that for some ball game in July," he advised.

Some unexpected arrivals brought joy to the Robin camp and shortened the list of holdouts and near holdouts.

Travels to Big Fight Astride His Mule

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 27 (AP)—[illegible] distance meant little to J. O. Redd, Georgia compatriot of W. L. (Young) Stribling and fight fan extraordinary.

Determined to see his idol's fight with Jack Sharkey tonight, Redd was confronted with the how of getting here from his home, Camak, Ga., 500 miles distant.

So he came astride his mule, according to his story.

put some fire into the heavyweight division.

In the event he wins, Sharkey will tackle Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium in June.

Sharkey has also been offered $150,000 to meet the winner of the Loughran-Walker bout in Chicago.

Dempsey will watch every movement of the rival fighters today with the thought in mind that he may be battling the winner in September. It is a ten to one shot that the former champion will stage a comeback.

Dempsey will leave here for New York after the fight. He will then go to Detroit where he has been asked to promote a bout. An effort is also being made to get Dempsey to box at Windsor, Canada.

From Detroit, Dempsey will return to California.

If either Sharkey or Stribling comes through with a sensational win tonight Dempsey will have to do something drastic to retain his position in the fistic limelight.

Due to the thrill producing article of hockey played by these teams last week, plus the Mackey-Halderson altercation, the Tiger-Newark game at the Arena tonight, will draw the largest crowd that has attended a Canadian - American League game here this season.

Last week the Tigers and Newark battled through three torrid periods which had the fans on their feet during a larger part of the hour. The game was fast and [illegible] at all times the checking [illegible] and the [illegible] bitter.

The [illegible] came from behind in the final session to win after Reg Mackey and Stan Halderson had staged [illegible] [illegible]

The Newark Bulldogs [illegible] Washington's Battalion [illegible] and the game all sewed up [illegible] Eddie Burke beat the defense to score the tying goal and then in the last minute of play Capt. Eddie Oatman maneuvered perfectly to give the Tigers their winning tally.

TIGERS TRAIL REDS

The Tigers are again trailing the Rhode Island Reds by one point and realizing that Providence has a tough game on its hands with New Haven tomorrow night Manager Eddie Powers' club will put its best foot forward to chalk up its third straight victory which [illegible] move the Tigers into the pace-making berth of the Can-Am league.

Although the Tigers went through three tough games last week the boys with the exception of Ponzi Contant are in prime condition for tonight's battle.

Ponzi was well pummelled in the Springfield game and it was feared that he had a fractured rib, but an X-ray disproved that. However, it is doubtful if Ponzi will see much action this evening.

Manager Powers will open the game with Frank Waite at center and Bob Taylor and Johnny Loucks on the wings, Capt. Oatman and Reg Mackey on the points and Herbie Rheaume in the goal.

Eddie Burke will work at center ice of the replacement line with Clark Heyd and Sonny Manning on the wings, while Ludger Desmarais will relieve Oatman and Mackey and there is a possibility of Harley Frost making his initial appearance as a defense man.

Nick Wasnie, Corbett Dennis and Leo Quenneville will be Manager Sprague Cleghorn's choices to start on the front line with Stan Halderson and probably Bill Coutu on the outer defense and Armand Lamontagne in the nets.

BRUINS HIT WINNING STRIDE

Martha Lee Tells of Crab Meat Dishes

ACCUSTOMED [illegible] Japan [illegible] spoken of [illegible] cherry blossoms [illegible] a small number of [illegible] know that within a few hundred miles of her coast to the northeast there lies a large area, frozen half of the year and deserted [illegible] year by the ever growing ocean traffic of the world. DEVILLED CRAB

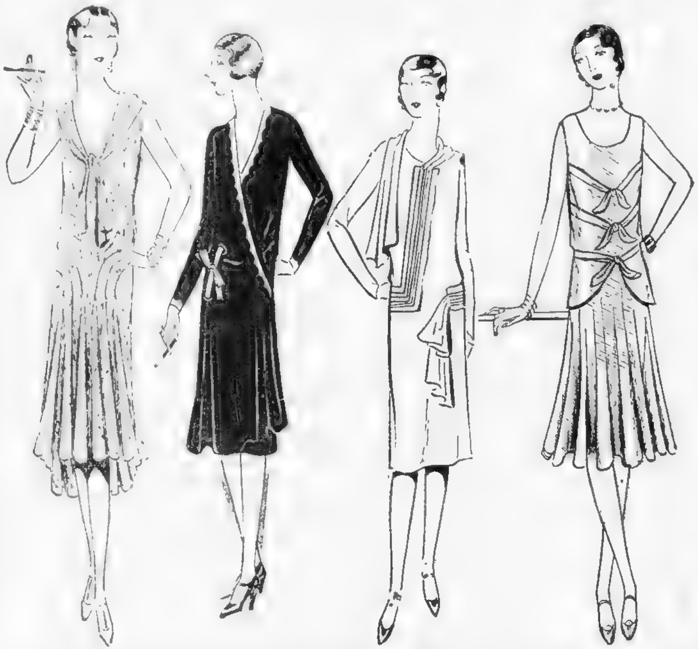
Pound can of crab meat, 1 cup of very fine bread crumbs, moistened with one-half cup milk, yolks of 2 hard-boiled eggs, rubbed through strainer, small pinch of mustard, 1 level teaspoonful salt, 1 pinch of cayenne, [illegible] cup melted butter, mix well. Fill the [illegible] or small dishes with the mixture, sift very fine bread crumbs lightly on top, dot with butter. Brown quickly in hot oven being careful they do not burn.

CRAB A LA NEWBURG

Put two tablespoons butter in a saucepan. When melted remove from fire and add two tablespoons flour, stir until smooth, then add [illegible] cups of cold milk slowly, salt and pepper and [illegible] to taste, [illegible] three minutes, stirring constantly until smooth and creamy. Then add a can of crab meat from which bones have been removed and cook three or four minutes.

Eccentricities in the Trim of Frocks



T[illegible] trimming a [illegible] seems a part of the dress, maybe a border. It is [illegible] and [illegible] claims its inception from the first [illegible]

What [illegible] is [illegible] used by [illegible] length of the material of which the day dress is made, placing it to define the waistline, running it up [illegible] to the neckline with one end [illegible] hangs at the hip in a soft bow. Another relatively simple but executed with real art.

Chiffon evening gowns are more [illegible] depend only on their own [illegible] for decoration. [illegible] model in blue and white printed chiffon has a scarf tied neckline that has proceeded from the skirt drapery up each side of the back. Skirt godets, three at each side, are set into the front [illegible] appear as if they were the fullness acquired from the three tucks [illegible] [illegible] with definite distinction. Navy is seen and bright shades as well. Topped by ermine coats these blue gowns are outstanding among other evening colors and pale tints.

Turquoise blue continues of fashion interest, it being an especially beautiful evening shade. On the second formal gown shown, of turquoise blue chiffon, Lanvin uses trimming bands of this material knotted in front, the lower one acting as a belt above the scant peplum from which the skirt flares in even fulness.

Hamilton to Make Two-Reel Talkies

By [illegible]

LOS ANGELES, Feb 27—Just to show what a little careful [illegible] will do, Lloyd Hamilton who looks 20 years younger than he did two years ago, has been signed to make two reel talkies. Hamilton made [illegible] not only did he observe prohibition in a country where there is no need for abstinence but he also [illegible] weight which he had acquired. He returned home mentally and physically improved.

Harry Donald Edwards saw Hamilton and immediately signed him for these two reelers. Edwards, who was former production manager before he went into the bond business, is the husband of Evelyn Brent. I rather think he will do [illegible] comedies for [illegible] comedian [illegible]

T[illegible] Warner [illegible]

YOU are pretty apt to hear [illegible] on all radios and in every restaurant these next few months "Little Pal," in other words [illegible] destined to become to the world what "Sonny Boy" was. "Have a heart," say you. "'Sonny Boy' has been sung to death." Well anyway "Little Pal" is going to be the name of the theme song of Al Jolson's next picture and incidentally the final title. Marian Nixon, Holmes Herbert and Kenneth Thomson have already been signed. Darryl Zanuck reports the starting date on Jolson is only a week hence.

Then a determined effort was made to get Lupe Velez but she is all tied up with other screen engagements.

Now it looks as if Marie Prevost will get the coveted role. At least, we hear from excellent authority that negotiations are all but closed. All that is necessary is the actual signing but as you know, there is many a slip twixt the cup and the lip so we will just say unless something unexpected happens Miss Prevost will be the chief [illegible] in this film.

IF you sit in the Montmartre long enough you will see all theatrical New York sooner or later. On Monday at one table were Rudolph Cameron erstwhile husband of Anita Stewart, Elliott Dexter looking very well and Fred Zimmerman Jr. Memories of the witticisms aimed at this same Mr. Zimmerman during Rennold Wolf's lifetime, unconsciously come to mind. The two of them were great friends and there was scarcely a day when some rare bits of nonsense was not published about Zimmerman. Elliott Dexter is here to try his luck with the talkies. Albert Parker who went to England to direct was also sitting at a nearby table. Mrs. Parker remained in New York with their daughter, Bernice, who was very ill in London.

THESE warm spring days suggest spring fever, especially when we consider that New York is in the throes of sleet, snow and other evidences of late winter. The studios, however, show no signs of spring fever. Clara Beranger, looking very mysterious, has been seen at the Pathe studios, consulting with Gloria Swanson. Someone suggests that perhaps she is lending a hand on the Swanson story, "Queen Kelly."

I wouldn't gossip for the world but you know we like to tell what we see. Ethlyn Clair, pretty redhead who has lately flashed upon the horizon of Hollywood as one of the comers, has been chosen by Clarence Brown for an important part in "Wonder of Women." William Bakewell has been given the juvenile lead in "The Gold-Digger," which goes into production the last of the month.

HOW was I to know that Edward Small had ceased functioning as an agent? How was I to know when he joined the Columbia company that Harry Cohn had agreed to produce certain pictures he would produce for Columbia? Not that I think once an agent always an agent, but I did see Small on the Columbia lot and I did hear he had affiliated himself with Columbia.

"Mr. Small isn't an agent," wailed Harry Cohn over the telephone, "and how do you think I am going to get my players? If they think I am getting all my talent from Edward Small not one of them will want to do business with me." It's certainly a break for the agents to have one of the producers giving them his family address.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random. Mary Pickford in a red chiffon evening dress dancing at the Mayfair Club. Edgar Selwyn and his attractive wife guests of John Considine and Carmen Pantages, also at the Mayfair. The polo players with some of Hollywood's most comely stars, dancing at the same social affair. A crowd of Mayfairers, visiting Wilson Mizner's Brown Derby restaurant in the wee sma' hours. Lillian Gish with a preoccupied air that denoted deep thought, driving out of the United Artists lot. Camilla Horn legally adopting a fluffy white poodle that came to her door. Constance Talmadge getting her hair washed in Jim's beauty parlor. Eddie Silton interviewing a client at the Montmartre Cafe. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Pockets go partying for some of the most charming of the sub-deb evening frocks have two very important front pockets as part of their makeup. And one creation of mauve pink net while we love its deep bertha, its girlish sash and its billowy skirt, we do find its pockets very amusing.

FATE IN BEAR TRAP

Today's Short Story — It Takes the Place of Cupid

HELEN WINTHROP was the beauty of the family. Dorothy was the clever one. But Jane was just Jane and nothing more [illegible] accomplishments. Her [illegible] were [illegible]

And so [illegible] had [illegible] behind her two slightly older sisters—just plain Jane—content to gather the crumbs of their friendships [illegible] to imitate [illegible]

But now that [illegible] was [illegible] supposed to be taking [illegible] society, Helen and Dorothy were [illegible] her more and more. Even at Secret Lake the winter resort where they must have [illegible] and skating [illegible] they were avoiding her. She grew more and more silent than ever.

They tried to help her. "Your hair doesn't look just right," Helen would say, and explain how she should get it cut. But if she followed Helen's advice, Dorothy would tell she wasn't the type for bobbed hair, and make her grow it again.

Even her mother seemed a little disappointed and wondered sometimes just what would become of Jane, now that she had finished boarding school and had no particular desire for college, nor flair for society, or for anything else so far as she could find out.

Time dragged at Secret Lake in spite of the winter sports. There weren't enough young men every one was a little tired of everyone else until—

Chester DeWitt Spenser, son of the Rubber King Spenser, appeared on the scene with a bored, overladen valet, four trunks, skis, snowshoes, skates and instructions from his physician—to rest and get a fresh hold on life.

The hotel camp stirred into new activity. Helen spent a worried half hour deciding which dress to wear to dinner that first night. Dorothy's eyes sparkled and her tongue ran on more nimbly than ever.

But Jane—she sat reading a book—the only person in the winter camp who hadn't noticed the arrival of the desirable young millionaire.

A week later when the camp buzzed with Chet Spenser's activities or rather lack of them she still hadn't noticed him. She merely registered the fact that at the long dining room table now a tall [illegible] young man had become the center of conversation—that all remarks had a way of ending—"Don't you agree with me, Mr. Spenser?"

Jane was reading a book about a princess who had escaped from her royal home for a fortnight of fun and she could scarcely eat her meals in her anxiety to return to it.

One night she went on an [illegible] herself the princess escaping from an unwelcome [illegible] [illegible] the lite and was deep in the pine woods.

Suddenly a cry sounded near her. The woods were very dark. Not a ray of moonlight pierced them. Another low cry—almost a moan.

Close to her an agonized voice said, "For God's sake help me. I'm freezing to death. I'm caught in a bear trap on the edge of this damned pit. Be careful not to [illegible]"

It was the voice of the pale, [illegible] Mr. Spenser. She [illegible] for him in the dark, [illegible] crept forward slowly, [illegible] she had [illegible] the heavy trap cang[illegible] [illegible] the trap.

"You saved my life," he said [illegible] "I couldn't have stood it [illegible] a minute longer. I was slipping down the pit—there [illegible] swollen. [illegible] here a [illegible]"

He drew her into the warm shelter of his big fur coat and then asked suddenly "What brought you out here at this time of night?"

His voice was so natural and easy [illegible] dream [illegible] have [illegible] of the prince.

Suddenly she began telling him [illegible] her sisters and [illegible] and what a failure [illegible] always been—how they were [illegible] with her, because [illegible] like parties and things [illegible] would like.

He told her [illegible] "They bore [illegible] They always [illegible] the most refreshing person I've ever met—

"[illegible] your turning up here [illegible] the minute when I'd [illegible] the game was up. It's fate."

"You're the first person I've ever [illegible] like this." [illegible] at the sound of [illegible]

[illegible] and kissed her [illegible]

"[illegible] been waiting [illegible] you ever [illegible] in this beastly place," said the prince, "you're the only one [illegible] herself out [illegible] interesting."

Helen and Dorothy were quarreling when Jane slipped into her room. They didn't notice her.

Helen was saying "Well, really, he had every intention of inviting me to the ski match this afternoon until you butted in."

Dorothy answered, "Yes? What about the hockey yesterday. We were getting along very nicely until you turned up."

Jane wondered what they were talking about, and went to sleep dreaming of a tall dark prince who had been wounded in battle—fighting for his lady love.

A week later Jane slipped out [illegible] night again. This time she carried a bag and left a [illegible] note on the pincushion for her mother and sisters. It read:

"I've gone off to marry Chester Spenser. He seems to like me and I know I'm in the way here because I never have been any good socially. He says that he has enough money to enable us to live comfortably, and I think we will be very happy. I hope you don't mind.

"Your loving daughter,
"JANE."

Helen and Dorothy read the note and swooned. Mrs. Winthrop grew [illegible] thought of Chester Spenser's [illegible] and bustled [illegible] the bridge table—

[illegible] he told the ladies—"What [illegible] Jane, the little [illegible] eloped with Chester DeWitt Spenser. I was afraid it might happen," she added, smiling [illegible] Jane was always so clever and the beauty of the family."

A Story of America's Mad Dance of Divorce

What Has Happened So Far

On the way from New York to Reno, DICK STUYVESANT meets FELICIA BRETT. They are strongly attracted to each other. DICK joins a bachelor friend, JOHN BERKELEY, nicknamed J. B. FELICIA goes to friends, DR. and MRS HODGE. DICK sees her the next day lunching with young PEGGY HODGE and two college boys. He flirts with BETTY ROGERS a pretty little Southerner in Reno for "The Cure," and that night attends a wild party. The next evening he meets FELICIA and the HODGES at JUDGE COOPER'S. While driving FELICIA home, DICK kisses her ardently and FELICIA does not resist him. ANN HODGE warns her that too marked friendliness with DICK may imperil her chance of obtaining custody of her six-year-old son.

She gets a wire from her mother, MRS. HENLEY MARTIN, in New York, telling her that ALEXANDER BRETT, her elderly husband, is on his way to Reno. She gets an airplane and leaves at once for New York to get her son.

Writing in his room the next morning, DICK is interrupted by the informal entrance of a handsome woman. He is rescued from an annoying situation by J. B. The woman, EDITH FEELEY, represents the boldest type of Renoite, an adventuress who picks up extra money by private detective work and blackmail. When ALEXANDER BRETT arrives the next day in Reno and asks the hotel clerk about detectives, he is given MRS. FEELEY'S name in addition to the card of a well-known agency. BRETT decides to see FELICIA before employing any outside assistance. He leaves the hotel to go to the HODGES' house just as FELICIA and her boy arrive by airplane.

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

"HOW [illegible] become popular with [illegible] how can I [illegible]"

These and similar questions [illegible] every day. [illegible] Young men are equally worried—or more so—about the art of pleasing girls. But as this column is devoted primarily to the interests of girls, I shall consider their problem today.

Fortunately there are many more than 57 varieties of girls. This allows for [illegible] of taste. A girl who positively fascinates one man may bore another and vice versa. Not all gentlemen prefer blondes.

It is perfectly natural that a girl should wish to please men—as natural as a man's eagerness for feminine approval and smiles. All men like certain qualities in women—qualities independent of the color of the hair or the shape of a nose. It may be well to think a little about these qualities and also to consider mistakes some girls make in their efforts to charm men.

In my opinion, a man likes a woman who has poise. By poise [illegible]

[illegible] one who is attentive, interested, ready to laugh or smile and give her sympathy an understanding. [illegible]

THE BAER FACTS -:- By 'BUGS' BAER

FOR many years we have been trying to construct the conversation between two presidents as they scamper up Pennsylvania ave. in the Inaugural parade.

We would not only like to know what the boys talk about, but also, who starts the argument.

We imagine that a consolidated scenario of lumped inaugurals would broadcast something like these:

"Nice day, Grover."

"It is for you, Zachary."

"Why don't you tip your hat?"

"I'm saving it for an emergency."

"Don't sit so close. They will think we're necking."

"What are you going to do after you get out?"

"Why bring that up?"

"By the way, how about the keys to the cellar?"

"Don't need 'em. My White House spokesman busted the door off its hinges."

"What did you think of my Inaugural speech? Pretty good, wasn't it?"

"Sure. Has been for centuries."

"How's the food in the White House?"

"Don't know. I lost my appetite last November."

"By the way, where's the official veto."

"The Senate donated it to the Smithsonian Institution."

"Do you mean to say that you can't control that mob of clover kickers?"

"Listen, Zach, this job of president is the same as a crossing watchman. If you're smart, you will wave the flag and then get off the tracks and let the train go by."

"Why, I thought a President was an important guy."

"I did too until I met a Senator."

"What are you going to do now that you are out?"

"About the same as Cinderella when her glass slippers cracked."

"Say, you're the fellow who said that he would rather be right than president, ain't you?"

"I realize now that I was misquoted."

"Well, here's the White House. Being as it ain't a taxicab, I'll get out first."

"Listen, Zach, do me a favor. Don't pan the last administration."

"All right, Grover. Just one more smile for the cameras and then we will act natural again."

MARRIAGE SUCCESS

By LUCY LOWELL

THE most successful woman I know—though her name never has blinked in lights on Broadway, nor stared from the back of a best seller nor appeared on the program of an art exhibition—has put over another victory.

At first you may not think of it as so much of a victory. Perhaps it will seem a bit work-a-day, even a trifle misguided, to you. And, again, it may not, for mayhap you are one of those whose standard is elevated above that of the well-known double bar athwart the capital S.

This woman is one who has made a success of marriage. After 17 years of ups and downs her husband loves her, and she loves him and they both love the kids, and the kids love the world. And what more do you want?

Anyway she dropped in today to tell me about it: a woman in a leaf-brown coat and a little leaf-brown hat to match, which didn't quite conceal the threads of gray in her hair. A woman who completely disregards the debutante slouch and to whom "reducing" is only a word. One whose cheeks were flushed with the glow of happiness and whose eyes were lighted with the joy of life. A beautiful woman.

It was about her husband. You see she happens to believe that besides being her husband and daddy to her children, he also is a person. An individual whom no amount of hard and fast marriage can make anything else. Not merely half of a marriage team—the buying half.

Well, it seems as he came home not long since and explained that business wasn't so good. Something had happened; his future with the firm no longer looked promising. Taking a chance to leave them now might mean a stretch of uncertainty. Of course he could keep what he had, that was sure enough and good enough as a matter of fact. But he had looked forward—well.

"Certainly you will leave!" said his wife. "You owe it to yourself—to all of us. This bit of writing I've been doing just for fun brings in enough to keep us going if we're short on funds."

You can fancy him protesting; pointing out that she had no business to make a responsibility of the family exchequer.

And you can imagine her laughing, making a great lark out of it. "There'll be so much more fun in writing if I'm doing it for a purpose. Honestly, I'll like myself lots better—don't ever doubt this—"

And there you are.

Of course there will be no time of stress for them since a man with that sort of wife can do anything at any time. But the fairness and the fine high courage of her!

A successful woman? I'll say she is!

ANTI-NOISE WEEK SUCCESS ASSURED

Plans for National Stop-That-Noise-Week are progressing rapidly. Apparently the country is aroused to the annoyance of nerve-shattering noises. Our telephone has been ringing incessantly—so many people are eager to make suggestions. Our Mrs. Ballou (above) reports progress as follows:

1. All traffic policemen will use Maxim silencers on their whistles.

2. Postmen will walk on tiptoe and refrain from ringing doorbells.

3. Motorists will muffle their auto horns with trombone hats.

4. Gangsters have agreed to the request to use knives and upholstered gas pipes instead of machine guns.

Cascarets give your bowels as much exercise as they get from an hour with the punching bag. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action. You have to keep taking them because they weaken your bowels.

Cascarets strengthen the bowels. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That's why Cascarets give lasting relief from those symptoms of sluggish bowels, such as headaches, biliousness, bloating, sallow skin, indigestion, no appetite, etc. Sales of over 30 million boxes yearly prove their merit!

PASTOR CALLS HEARST TEMPERANCE OFFER BOON TO NATION

DECLARES DRY LAW FAILURE SHATTERS 'DAY DREAMS'

The Rev. Carl Scheben of Newport, Ky., formerly a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, contributes his views to the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest, not as an entrant, but in protest against prohibition.

The retired minister says:

"Like thousands of other Americans I thank Mr. Hearst for his initiation of this really American program to find an acceptable temperance substitute for the intemperance, social and legal, which marks 'prohibition.'

"I approach the subject from an impartial viewpoint, because for many years my father was a wholesale liquor dealer, although I became a minister of the Methodist Episcopal faith."

After indicating that he is not in sympathy with the more extreme views of some of the Methodist clergy on prohibition, the Rev. Mr. Scheben goes on to say:

"The day dreams of the promoters of prohibition have been shattered. They righteously intended to stop intoxication, reduce crime, and purge politics by enacting the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act:

CRIME INCREASES

"So far as the legal machinery goes, they did their best to obtain these results. Sad to relate, crime is ever increasing, as are violations of the Volstead Act. Politics has not been purged, as the bootlegger is a powerful factor in politics. Men and women still drink. God alone knows how much they drink and what they drink.

"Millions of citizens originally were never in favor of this 10-year-old law. We were engaged in the World War and the public mind was naturally not concentrated upon the wet and dry issue. And in that psychological moment for the drys, through the Anti-Saloon League and allied organizations, they put it over and sewed up the American people in a legislative entanglement which has caused resentment on the part of some of the states and may even cause grave difficulty with other nations in the future.

"Thus the drys almost abandoned their policy of education and the teaching of true temperance, which would permit drinking with moderation, to use force.

"It is not good psychology to prohibit something when the forbidden articles can be obtained from so many sources. Experience proves that we can educate in matters of eating and drinking, but we cannot legislate that kind of conduct. Ever since the days of Adam, forbidden fruits have been attractive.

FAILURE SEEN

"I formerly believed that you could make people stop drinking if not for their own good, for the welfare of a weaker brother, but now I find that the presence of this law makes it almost impossible to reach the addict of strong drink.

"For some time I have been interested in religious work in prisons, and I have observed that just as soon as you allude to abstaining from drink, you close the door of opportunity to reach the great majority of prisoners.

"There is conflict between Congressional districts and national policy. There are a number of these districts which are not in favor of prohibition enforcement, and if the Congressman expresses himself to the effect that he will do his utmost to obtain enforcement, without doubt he will lose his seat in Congress at the next election.

"What should this Congressman do? Naturally, he tries to square himself with the people and also respect the dry law in effect, a really difficult and almost impossible task.

"Tradition is more deep-seated in the mind of the average man than a recently-made law. The majority of our urban population in the United States is possessed of that ingrained tradition that there is no harm in moderate drinking of wines and beers. Even the drys admit there is no harm in moderate drinking.

"Even if this large class of citizens are now breaking the dry law, they cannot be classified with other types of criminals, for, if we do this, we encourage them to violate other laws.

CLAIM IS FALSE

"The widespread impression that prohibition has caused our present prosperity is false. Higher wages came during the World War. Increased production which maintained high wages after the war came through piece-work systems, bonus and efficiency programs in the industrial plants.

"Strange but true, every other country that has adopted prohibition has modified or obliterated it after a few years, and history will fail to repeat itself if we do not do the same as those countries whose judgment has proved wise. May the Hearst temperance prize contest find a way to bring it about."

Other interviews follow:

DR. CLARENCE A. BONNER, superintendent, Danvers State Hospital; formerly Chief Executive Boston Psychopathic Hospital—Alcohol has always played a definite part in the production of a peculiar and well-known type of mentally diseased and prohibition likewise has had its effect on State Hospital patients. Many of our patients have a psychosis definitely due to addiction to strong drink, their illness and maladjustment to society directly traceable to the use of alcoholic stimulants.

It is interesting to note that at the inception of the prohibition laws our incidents of admission here averaged then 10 per cent. Immediately followed a decrease in admission of this type of patient. It dropped to 2 per cent. However, today after a gradual increase, we find that the 10 per cent of pre-prohibition days has returned and we are back where we started from.

Thus it would seem that despite prohibition alcohol continues to be used as a beverage. Medical authorities quite agree that for medicinal purposes the use of alcohol is limited. Its chief value is primarily for elderly patients.

FACE PROBLEM

There is no doubt but that the application of legal restraint on liquor peculiarly affected the people of the country to which psychological influence there has been wide reaction. This reaction, however, probably could never have been foretold.

However, today we are facing an actual problem in meeting this difficulty, but it is a problem that must be tackled and must be solved. Its solution is in no way near completion as it stands today.

There has been but a superficial skimming of its surface.

Mr. Hearst's offer then comes at a most expedient time. It comes when it should be greatly appreciated, and when the people of the country ought to be awakened to the realization that if they consider themselves the affected, it is their job to effect the cure.

In the analysis of this great problem we must face the fact that other factors than the distinct legal phase, exist, namely, the sociological and economic. That prohibition still provides pabulum for thought, we must all agree.

I sincerely hope Mr. Hearst's offer bears fruit. Prohibition, if it has decreased home misery such as existed in saloon days, has been responsible in some degree for the increase of crime.

All phases of the question should be heavily weighed, and then I feel certain that one definite plan and solution will result which will be both practical and humanly possible.

DR. ARTHUR N. BALL, formerly of Northampton State Hospital, Gardner Colony; Department of Mental Diseases, State House; chief executive of Boston Psycopathic Hospital—There is no doubt but that the present prohibition law has had much to do with the increase of crime. Many professional crooks have taken to bootlegging, because it is easier and more remunerative. Particularly, has the second-story worker forsaken his trade for the adoption of the illicit alcohol trade.

CHANGE NEEDED

So many murders as have occurred in the past would never have taken place under the old system of dispensing liquor.

Prohibition is not being enforced because of the lack of interest in it.

When prohibition was passed, our percentage of admission dropped, but today after a gradual increase it is back to the number as in the pre-prohibition days. And they are drinking worse stuff.

Time is ripe for a change. I think Mr. Hearst is to be congratulated for his interest in this public question and his desire to awaken the public to the need of a change. If he can educate the public to this, he will no doubt get somewhere in his enterprise.

Mr. Hearst through his newspapers can probably bring about the much needed and long-hoped for change which could not be obtained through legislation. The public might get wise and do something about this prohibition situation. The weakest point of prohibition is that the temperate public is not behind the Prohibition Act.

I most assuredly endorse Mr. Hearst's campaign and I hope that his cash award will not only enrich some honest and far-sighted individual, but enrich the country spiritually and morally.

Gang wars. Who ever heard of them before prohibition? The greater part of murders committed today are directly due to the prohibition laws. This is a wise move on the part of Mr Hearst and his offer should be taken seriously.

LAUDS OFFER

MRS. JENNIE LOITMAN BARRON, attorney; member Boston School Committee; clubwoman—I am happy to endorse Mr. Hearst's $25,000 prize for a substitute prohibition plan for many reasons, the strongest of which is:

It will help to educate the public in a question which for the past 10 years has been so debatable as to undermine its usefulness. The people of Massachusetts spoke their voice at the polls last November. It will be interesting to note their expressed views in detail.

Any public offer which stimulates the community to discussion and thorough interest, particularly of the prohibition problem which has gripped every individual in the country, both young and old, is praiseworthy and commendable. I await with interest the outcome of this contest.

Here Are Rules in Hearst Temperance Contest

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practical plan as a substitute for prohibition which will secure better actual temperance conditions which will be more easily possible of enforcement by State and Federal authorities which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than one thousand words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practicable temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the Temperance Contest Committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

(If you have no objection to publication of your plan, please write "May print" in upper left hand corner of first page.)

Copeland Scores in Third Concert

George Copeland, who is enjoying an extraordinary vogue, gave his third concert of the season at Jordan Hall. A large audience was not satisfied to applaud the pianist in the conventional manner that does service at the customary recital in Jordan Hall. At almost every opportunity there was demonstrative enthusiasm; and at the close of the concert the audience lingered after several extra-numbers and numerous curtain-calls.

The program was in Copeland's usual vein, consisting of short pieces from ancients and moderns, six numbers by Debussy, Nicholas Slonimsky's "Silhouettes Iberiennes" (played from manuscript) and other Spanish pieces. The pianist was his markedly individualistic self—now enchanting the audience with poetry, and again beating out the Spanish dances with impassioned fire.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

Nature warns you

When a cheery smile is replaced by a frown of annoyance because of a sneeze, a headache, or a stopped-up feeling ... watch out. Nature is warning you that you had better co-operate and rid yourself of an incipient cold before it gets worse.

To neglect these warning symptoms, may be more serious than you think! That's why it is so important to take GROVE'S BROMO QUININE promptly. Millions of people every year, all over the world, use it to side-step colds entirely or throw them off quickly!

Here is "quick relief for colds", proved for nearly 40 years. Here are results that have made GROVE'S BROMO QUININE the largest selling cold remedy .... Make sure of getting the prescription you want by emphasizing GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

HUB COUPLE 50 YEARS MARRIED

Surrounded by their children and grandchildren, relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dan celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding at Cocoanut Grove with a family party.

Van Dan, widely known in the business circles of Boston, was for 45 years in a loan business at Washington and School Sts., now operated by his son, Mark.

The latter, with two other sons Joseph and Harry, and a daughter Annie, attended the party. Seated at the head table with the couple and their children were the following grandchildren: Ella, Maxwell, Melvin, Annie, Henry, Jr., Mollie, Pauline, Reva and George Van Dan. Other guests were Mrs. Reva Rossi, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Van Dan, Mr. and Mrs. S. Berg, and Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph, of New York.

The couple plan a tour of the West in the near future on their second honeymoon.

Hearst Temperance Offer Lauded by Educator

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 27—In a statement Dr. M. Lyle Spencer, president of the University of Washington, said:

"The William Randolph Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest is a most laudable undertaking, worthy of the highest praise.

"I am inclined to think that true temperance is purely a matter of education, and this contest, I am sure, will provoke general discussion which will certainly be education.

"I personally hope that the contest will produce a plan which will be effective. But, in any event, it will stimulate interest in temperance throughout the country."

Passengers on Liner Still Quarantined

Seattle, Feb. 27 (AP)—Still under quarantine, 132 steerage passengers who have been exposed to spinal meningitis, were in their quarters aboard the American mail liner President Lincoln today.

One of the 12 passengers ill with the disease when the ship booked Monday night, died yesterday.

Dictator's Kin Fined

Madrid, Feb. 27 (INS)—General Primo De Rivera, Spanish dictator, announced at a cabinet council that his own nephew had been fined 50,000 pesetas for "talking against the government."

Seven "Old Masters" Auctioned for $9550

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—Seven paintings attributed to old masters and which the owners in 1910 valued at $138,700 were sold at sheriff's sale for $9550.

The paintings at one time were owned by Arthur Philip Heinze, copper man, who suffered financial reverses some 20 years ago. The paintings were part of 14 signed over to the Empire Trust Company for a loan of $15,000. A portrait of the Countess of Bedford attributed to Van Dyke and for which Mr. Heinze was reported to have paid $80,000 was sold for $2950. Others were sold as the works of Gainsborough, Landseer, Bouguereau, Jules Breton and Denilly.

WEEI AND WBZ TO BROADCAST MIAMI BOUT

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

FISTICUFFS will occupy the attention of the nation's manhood to the exclusion of almost everything else in the mature period of the evening. All ears will be strained to catch the faintest echoes from Florida's flowery fields when Squire Sharkey of Brookline squares off before sturdy Young Stribling of the Southland. Like Lars Porsena of Clusium, Jack Dempsey by the nine gods he swore that nary a radio eavesdropper would get a free-for-nothing ringside broadcast seat to this argument. But that was only the well-known hooey, sent out so as to encourage the fans to patronize the Florida East Coast Railroad and the Dempsey-Madison Square Garden Corporation box office. Meantime preparations went quietly ahead for the usual extensive broadcast of the bout. As soon as the day arrived when the most tardy of fight enthusiasts could no longer reach Miami without the aid of a Big Bertha, the promoters permitted the broadcast stations to announce their participation.

LOCALS BROADCAST FIGHT

TONIGHT'S pugilistic proceedings will percolate locally through two stations of the National Broadcasting Company's network, namely, WBZ and WEEI. The Westinghouse station will tie in at 9:30, in time for some of the preliminaries. Edison will cut into the Palmolive Hour at 10 o'clock to pick up the main bout. Here's tonight's confidential guide to the radio:

7:00—WBZA—Jeddo Highlanders. Tuneful light classics by orchestra, with Leslie Frick, contralto, and Stephano di Stephano, harpist, as soloists.

7:30—WEEI—La Touraine Tableau. Studio orchestra of 40 in a miscellaneous program, assisted by Michael Kharlton, Russian pianist.

8:00—WNAC—Sweethearts. Columbia feature. String orchestra, male quartet, sextet and Ossip Giskin, 'cellist, in lovey-dovey songs.

8:00—WBZA—Mobiloil Orchestra. Light music. Alois Havrilla as guest announcer and baritone soloist. Erno Rapee directing orchestra of 50 pieces.

8:00—WEEI—Sunkist Serenaders. Orchestra and soloists in songs with a Spanish flavor.

8:30—WNAC—"The Marriage of Figaro," sung by Columbia singers. This is an exquisite little Mozart opera, heard all too infrequently.

8:30—WBZA—Sylvania Foresters. Quartet, tenor and orchestra in songs of "In the Gloaming" type.

9:00—WEEI—Ingram Shavers. Barber shop harmonizing and dance tunes.

9:00—WBZA—Smith Brothers. You know all about them except the color of their neckties.

9:30—WNAC—La Palina Smoker. Lively music and nonsense, with Oscar Shaw, musical comedy favorite, leading the way.

9:30—WEEI—Palmolive Hour — Only half an hour tonight because of the Sharkey-Stribling bout.

9:30 — WBZA — Semifinals at Sharkey-Stribling match.

10:00—WEEI — Sharkey-Stribling bout.

10:00—WBZA—Sharkey-Stribling bout.

10:00—WNAC — Kolster Radio Hour. Some more Mozart and other orchestral tid-bits.

10:30—WNAC—Then and Now. Columbia feature offering contrasting popular songs of yesteryear and the present.

10:30—WEEI—Gold Strand Orchestra. A serious program of lighter music of the MacDowell-Rimsky Korsakoff character.

RADIO RIB TICKLERS

WLEY—"Have you tried the new bootleg weekend whiskey?"
"No. What kind is it?"
"You take a drink on Monday and the week ends."
(Edward Sweeney, Lowell)

WBZ—"What kind of a room would you like? Inside or outside?"
"I'd like an inside room. It looks like rain."
(Walter Conley, Hyde Park)

VEGA CREW TO GIVE DANCE

With entertainment features furnished by its crew, the U. S. S. Vega, now docked at the Charlestown Navy Yard for its annual overhauling, will hold its annual winter ball at the Roseland ball room, Massachusetts ave., Thursday night.

This is the first dance that the Vega had ever given in Boston in following its custom of giving parties in various ports visited.

Included among the entertainment features will be selections by the U. S. S. Vega Four, composed of Augustus Bunkley, radio artist of Vallejo, Cal.; J. E. Hicks, Baldy Brooks and Boatswain's Mate Molz. An exhibition dance will be given by Harold Bruton. The committee comprises: Chief Commissary Steward William Fancher, chairman; P. P. Wynn, George Allman, Frank Renda and Fred Waller.

The Vega, a naval transport running between Boston and the West Coast and the Orient, will be tied up at Charlestown until April.

Marchand to Give Last 2 Talks Here

The last two of a series of addresses by G. E. Marchand, noted lawyer and lecturer, will be given tonight and tomorrow night at Tremont Temple. The lectures are open to the public.

During his brief engagement here Marchand, who is president of the National University Society, an endowed institution, has attracted thousands of men and women who have listened to his interesting talks on "eye drinking."

Marchand illustrates his talks on how to "turn ability into cash" by motion pictures and living models.

"A great many men and women are on the shelf," asserts Marchand, "and the common belief that industry wants to get rid of those who attain middle age is all wrong. Industry wants them up-to-date regardless of age."

Our Gravest Problem

A Revolt Against Established Law and Constituted Authority Confronts the American People

Crimes of violence are increasing at an alarming rate all over this country. The criminal classes North, South, East and West are now in open revolt against the government and people of the United States and the governments and peoples of the several states of the Union.

This revolt against established law and constituted authority is far and away the gravest problem confronting the American people today. It is the paramount problem with which the President whom they inaugurate next week will have to deal from the day that he enters the White House.

Chicago may be the center of this revolt, but it extends to cities and towns throughout the country.

Organized gangsters, wholesale and retail pedlars of dope, and all sorts and conditions of criminals of the most vicious type are menacing the peace and safety of the households of the nation and the moral and physical welfare of the whole American family.

There is no getting away from the fact that the situation created by those criminal classes is no ordinary situation. We, as a people, might as well face the fact that it is an extraordinary condition of affairs. Its challenge to government can only be met by a resort to extraordinary measures in State and nation.

These extraordinary measures, to be effective, must take the form of co-ordinated and drastic action. This action must came as the result of a comprehensive and well considered program. This program can only be carried out under the leadership of the federal Government and with the co-operation of all the state governments.

For here is an emergency in which "The spirit of the people can do much but it cannot do everything." Least of all can it take the place of that leadership of the Presidency, for which there is no substitute under the American system of government.

One of the most contaminating effects of this criminal revolt is its corruption of officers of the law and the resultant demoralization of a large element of our citizenship.

Take the dope evil as a glaring example. It is infectious in the extreme and its effect is utterly destructive to health and morality.

And there is an absolute connection between the crimes of gangsters and the criminal peddling of dope because the criminal records show that the gangsters are often dope fiends, and both types of criminals are too often protected by crooked politicians.

That these lowest and most vicious elements of humanity should week in and week out defy all law and dominate political conditions in big cities to the extent that they do is an intolerable state of affairs. It is dangerous to the whole country. It is disgraceful to all government. It is humiliating to every respectable citizen. It puts in jeopardy respect abroad for men and things American and the happiness at home of the American people.

This extraordinary criminal situation is not confined to the city of Chicago, indescribably bad as are the conditions there. It is not merely a municipal problem or a state problem. It is a national problem and the gravest that plagues the nation today.

Powerful and prosperous as is the nation today, it cannot afford to permit these conditions to spread. It cannot even afford to have these conditions remain as bad as they are.

Something has got to be done. Something effective. Something immediate. Something backed by the full force of both the state and federal governments to put down this revolt of all these criminal conspirators against the life and property of American citizens; the peace and safety of American homes; the health of the American people and the honor of this nation.

Prompted by a realizing sense of this extraordinary state of affairs, the United States Senate has just adopted and the House of Representatives should soon adopt a joint resolution providing for a federal investigation of the criminal conspiracy in which the dope pedlars of the country have long been engaged.

But this investigation is only one of a group of extraordinary measures to which resort must be promptly had if this country-wide revolt of criminals at large is to be put down and the plague spots of the country cleaned up.

In the light of the facts which this Congressional investigation will lay bare, other and more drastic measures must follow in quick succession.

Under the leadership of the President and Congress, supported by the governors and the legislatures of the several states, the American people have a right to demand that the challenge of these criminals in revolt shall be met and met standing.

The time for exclamation has passed. The time for action is at hand.

Pity the Flag

Some Foreign Nations Might Oblige

This nation, of great industrial efficiency, backs out of the field of commercial shipping, content to confess incompetency, and sell ships for a fraction of their value.

France, on the other hand, nation of marvellous energy, puts Government money into a gigantic passenger vessel that will eclipse everything on the water—British, German, Italian included.

One thousand feet long, 111 feet wide, with 45,000 more horsepower than the Mauretania, the 60,000-ton French ship will be queen of the ocean, in size and speed.

Since this richest nation in the world lacks brains and ability to compete with others on the high seas, why not pay some smaller nation to carry our flag on their ships, with their own flag.

That might not seem dignified, but it would give the Stars and Stripes a ride, with change of air, and let the outside world know that the flag exists.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE average man will need only twelve hats, eight overcoats and twenty suits of clothes, this season, in order to be properly dressed.

This announcement of the style promoters has come with a great shock to a lot of unsuspecting he-men. But the blow to the men is as nothing, beside the speechless amazement with which it has struck their wives.

Any woman who has had to bully, nag, coax and threaten her darling into his ONE suit of evening clothes and his one clean boiled-shirt, twice a year, ever since they were married, will probably faint at the news.

The big struggle of the average woman's life is to lure, coerce, hector, shame or browbeat her husband into buying a new suit of clothes, now and then.

His unfailing answer to all her pleadings and arguments is "Whassamatter with the one I got?"

Persuading him to throw away an old hat or discard a faded pair of knickers takes all her strength, tact and finesse. And even then she often has to work on his sentiment, by recalling how beautifully groomed he always was during their courtship days and asking him if he doesn't love her any more.

The real germ of many a divorce has been the moth-eaten college sweater or the mouldly pair of hunting boots, which a heartless wife has surreptitiously sent to the starving heathens.

As for inducing a man to keep two dinner coats or two evening suits on hand— ha ha! He would as soon think of keeping a harem! Two motor cars? Yes. Two wives? Perhaps. But never more than one collar-button, one clean evening shirt and one "sarcophagus," at a time!

Beside, will the Merchant Tailors kindly tell Father how he is going to hang his twenty suits of clothes on the one hook he has always been allowed in Mother's clothes closet? Or wher he will squeeze in his twelve hats among the twenty-four chapeaux on Mother's hat shelf?

And if he becomes clothes-conscious and buys himself eight new overcoats to replace the faded, fringed one he has been wearing for the last three winters, where will the money come from for Mother's ermine evening wrap?

Once men may have had the time to enjoy dolling up in brocaded coats, lace ruffles, silk stockings and silver buckled shoes. But time is money, nowadays—and gasoline and golf! And there is no glamor about a cast-iron derby hat and a pair of tweed trousers!

Alas, nay. You can lead a modern man to frilled pajamas and lavender cravats and white satin evening clothes—but you can't make him WEAR 'em!

Not if he's married—and you're his own wife!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF anyone told you you were not free you'd be pretty mad.

You'd announce at once that both God and the American Constitution made you as free as air.

Which may be so—

Nevertheless you're not free.

For even if God and the American Constitution worked overtime to give you freedom you'd rapidly acquire shackles—

AND THOSE SHACKLES YOU WOULD FORGE FOR YOURSELF.

Cowardice is one of those shackles.

Laziness is a shackle—

Conceit is a shackle—

Hate, jealousy, envy, greed are shackles—

The wrong kind of love, the wrong kind of ambition are the worst shackles.

These attitudes and desires which you forge in the secret places of the heart are really tangible chains which bind you and enslave you.

God can't make you free—

The Constitution can't make you free—

YOU'RE AS FREE AS YOUR OWN STATE OF MIND.

If your mind is in a cell of fear, or hate, or desire, or pride, then you're in a cell. And it's a crueler cell than any penitentiary.

If your mind has shaken itself free, then you are really free with the only true freedom there is and nothing than any man can do to you will harm you.

There's a gay little song which everyone was singing some time ago which was built about that truth. It was called "I JUST ROLL ALONG," and the first verse goes something like this—

"Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye, Blues!
I miss my joy and sorrow, living as I do—
Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye, Blues,
I haven't got a thing to lose!
Oh, I just roll along, having my ups, having my downs,
Having my ups and downs all day long—"

That's modern jazz music, but it's also the essence of the most ancient philosophy on earth. Every great teacher, including Christ, has taught us that freedom can only come from within ourselves—when we, ourselves, stop fearing and hating and desiring too greatly.

They also advised men to "just roll along, having their ups and downs" without taking life too seriously.

"Maybe it's hot—maybe it's cold, whether it's hot or cold, I don't care," runs the little song.

You have to be pretty wise to understand the findings of the great philosophers, but there's a rule that fits the simplest mind.

Whatever your life, or whatever your nature, you CAN train yourself so that you won't mind much whether it's hot or cold—

You CAN stop shackling your life with unnecessary fears and spites and greedy, bossy loves, if you really want to—

YOU CAN BE FREE!
IT'S UP TO YOU!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THIS earth is so fair that no dream could be fairer, until hope slips away from the path we tread and we find of all charms none more potent or rarer; for when hope takes its leave all our gladness is fled; and no man can recapture old ardor, old rapture, when the glamour of hope from his vision has sped. But like the glimpses of spring in the days, growing longer, and like whispers of spring in the wind from the plain, so I find, in this joy that, unnourished, grows stronger. In this laughter, unbidden, which stirs me again, a glimpse, growing clearer, a whisper, drawn nearer, of course, with its promise of peace after pain.

Boston American's Policies For Boston-New England

FOR BOSTON:

1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

FOR NEW ENGLAND:

1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

New York Day by Day
by
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—Every big New York hotel faces bankruptcy its first year. People are skittish about a new inn. They wait for others to break the ice and that is why free board is frequently offered to notables and there are usually glittering questionables willing to accept the handout.

Once it is noised about a hotel is housing people of importance the herd instinct prevails and continued prosperity depends upon the service standards maintained by the management. One of the tricks of a new hotel to create a prosperous air is inexpensive but effective.

At dusk lights are turned on, in every outside room and employes circulate about to throw their shadows on the curtains of windows. This gives passersby the idea of bustle and life. Page boys are also instructed to shout important names in the lobby and dining rooms.

Several years ago the director of what is now one of New York's best paying hotels scanned the arrival list gloomily, then took an elevator to the roof and leaped to the courtyard some 30 stories below and eternity. The hotel had been open six weeks and a mammoth investment seemed a total loss.

In another important hotel a year ago the total number of guests was eight many weeks afterward. An impoverished society woman was employed to engineer a series of fashionable dinner parties and a press agent spread the news in the society columns. The tide was turned and the hotel prospers.

Sometimes a murder or scandal affects a hotel, but not often. The scene of one of New York's most famous murders was the Broadway Central—the Fiske-Stokes affair—and while it is one of the oldest hotels and off beaten tracks, enlists excellent patronage.

One of the newest hotels—a gaudy structure appealing to a Broadway clientele—was recently the scene of a sensational underworld murder, and many thought the place forever doomed. It suffered lack of patronage for a few weeks and that was all. New York quickly forgets.

A MANIFESTO has been issued on table cards in The Ritz restaurants reading: "The management requests our esteemed patrons to refrain from dancing unless in evening attire."

MISSISSIPPI JONES, the familiar ebony-hued hackman, was missed along the Main Stem recently along with his antiquated sea-goer and ancient nag. His straw plug hat and pearl-buttoned yellow overcoat were long a part of the Broadway picture—about the last of his curb-roaming tribe. He braved the lean days with grinning and stoic cheer until illness came and his horse and gig were seized for debt. But a proverbial good fellow heard of his plight and Mississippi and his hack have been restored to the gay boulevard, for a little while at least.

DUBLIN TERRY is a Fifth ave. hackman who also carries on. In old Delmonico days he was always out front of that restaurant in the wind and rain. Today he ranges farther north and there is a touch of pathos in his effort to lift his ballyhoo of "Kerridge, sir! Very exclusive!" above the motor madness.

TWO oddly dressed girls have been exciting first nighters. One is olive-skinned with straight black hair brushed slickly back like Galli Curci, and her costume is an old-fashioned hoop-skirted frock with a huge cameo brooch at her throat. Her companion is a flapper type in a modish tailored suit, and with a wild fluff of hair as light as an Albino. The sartorial contrast is hoop-de-do.

THE conventional shade of blonde hair is rarely seen these days among those who want to be considered "smurt." It is touched up to resemble that shade of taffy reached only after a long pulling. The chemical term, I believe, is white henna, and it gives the wearer a sort of pale languidness. I should run through this paragraph again. It sounds goofy.

BUT after being reprimanded severely by one of Mr. Whalen's gentlemen in no end of a gaudy uniform trying to hurry across Broadway I'm all atwitter.

Power of Pictures

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE lately received a number of letters from school girls asking me to send them promptly a dozen or more pictures illustrating science. One says, persuasively, "I am requested to have the pictures by Thursday. The more pictures I have the higher mark I get. When my sister used to go to high school she cut out your articles every night, just like I am doing."

Of course, I should be delighted to furnish the pictures if I had the leisure to make them, although I should suspect that my doing so would be regarded by the girls teachers as surreptitious aid in preparing for examination. However, that would not deter me, for I am sure the girls would have to study the pictures in order to understand them, and thus I might take the place of a text-book.

Some of the best pictures ever made are simple diagrams. A diagram is thought made visible. It is a photograph of what is floating in the mind, not to be clearly described with words. Most of the pictures used to illustrate science must be diagrams, because they deal with abstract ideas. A cow is a concrete object, not an abstract idea, and to picture a cow you simply make a likeness of her. But the motion of the moon around the earth is an abstract idea, and to picture it you must use a diagram.

I am not sure but that the modern tendency to use algebraic to the exclusion of geometric methods in teaching science is a serious mistake. Algebraic mathematics is pure abstraction. Geometry and its outgrowth, graphic analysis, use the picture method. There is, of course, a limit beyond which the geometrical method cannot go, but for the purposes of ordinary education it is more efficient than the other.

Put everything you can before the eyes; they are the great judges in the court of the mind. "Seeing is believing," and that excellent adage means exactly what it says; it refers to external vision, not to mere floating and more or less indistinct phantasms in the mind.

This calling upon pupils in science to furnish pictures is excellent. It is a powerful lever in education. When one man make a picture illustrating his thought he clarifies the latter, and at the same time makes the subject with which it deals doubly interesting to himself. The elements of drawing should be taught in every common school, as early as possible. I have often regretted that it was not a prescribed subject when I was a schoolboy. It is as important as writing. Almost every child wants to draw a picture. That is a natural expression of the desire of the mind to represent clearly before the eyes the thoughts that lurk in the brain. It is amazing that this natural tendency should have been ignored, and that children have not always been taught to draw as early and as carefully as they have been taught to write in the primary schools.

The educational quality of pictures needs to be more developed. Far too many are trivial, farcical, or worse. Some are more obscure than the thought—if there be a thought—that is supposed to be behind them. They abase the noblest, and potentially the most useful of the fine arts. In place of this riff-raff there should be a greater abundance of pictures presenting a stimulating likeness of the world, of science and of human nature in their best aspects. Thomas A. Edison's idea of the supreme importance of education through the eye is right.

Pictures were the very first manifestations of mental development exhibited on the walls of gloomy prehistoric caverns, and the evolutionary power that is in them has not been exhausted by all the successive civilization through which mankind has lifted itself ever nearer to the ideal plane that it may some time reach.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

We plainly perceive that the mind strengthens and decays with the body. —Lucretius.

Those who seek much are left in want of much. Happy is he to whom God has given, with sparing hand, as much as is enough. —Horace.

No one is exempt from talking nonsense; the misfortune is to do it solemnly. —Montaigne.

The higher a man is in grace the lower he will be in his own esteem. —Spurgeon.

Science and art belong to the whole world, and before them vanish the barriers of nationality.—Goethe.

There is nothing strictly mortal, but immortality. Whatever hath no beginning may be confident of no end. —Browne.

Joy is not in things, it is in us. —Wagner.

Fire is everywhere; it enfolds all nature; it brings forth, renews, divides, unites, nourishes all things. —Voltaire.

Blessings star forth forever; but a curse
Is like a colud—it passes. —Bailey.

Passion is a sort of fever in the mind which ever leaves us weaker than it found us.—Penn.
